Men Arrested For Robbery Are Taken To Butler

Police Investigate Possibility Of Connection With Mather Robbery

TAKE WITNESSES TO BUTLER TO SEE THEM

Investigation of local police officers today is being centered on an effort to ascertain if there was any connection of those individuals arrested Monday by state and local police for their alleged connection with the robbing of the Clarion County National Bank at Knox, Pa., with the Mather Brothers Company jewelry store robbery of last Thursday night.

A man and a woman, who saw the jewelry stolen on that night, being removed from the window of the store, were taken to the Butler barracks of the state police this afternoon, for the purpose of seeing the men arrested and determining whether or not it was one of these men, seen taking the jewelry from the window.

Regardless of the outcome of this investigation, according to the police here, the connection of part of the men arrested for the bank robbery has been established, S. C. Earl, one of the men arrested at Knox following this robbery, having confessed, they say.

Police Given Credit

Credit for the roundup of the alleged robber gang belongs to the New Castle police force. Officer Pete Hillers was the local officer who secured the first tip concerning the plans being made for the robbery.

The state police here investigating the Mather robbery, the morning after it occurred, were advised

This would put it in shape to be passed on final reading on February 23, if the house concurs with the senate.

Contrary to expectation, the house rules committee failed to make its report last night. Whether the report will be forthcoming this week could not be learned.

Make Changes In Operation Of School Board

Action Taken Which Relieves Board Of Many Minor Details Of School Work

SUPERINTENDENT IS MADE RESPONSIBLE

Superintendent Of Buildings And Grounds Also To Be Named

Board of education of the city of New Castle, at one stroke of the pen, so to speak, last night adopted resolutions, by which greater powers and more duties were delegated to the superintendent of schools in the administration of the affairs of the school system, while at the same time, the board is relieved of petty detail work that has occupied so much time in the past and is given an opportunity of devoting more time to the greater and important phases of the work of the school system, which may have suffered in the past, through the lack of time in considering such matters.

It is in effect, the centralization of authority in administrative affairs of the school district, with one individual responsible to the board for the successful and economical operation of the schools of the city.

Superintendent of Buildings

In connection with these changes, the secretary of the board was also designated as the business manager and purchasing agent and directly responsible to the superintendent of schools, while a new position of superintendent of buildings, grounds and equipment with a salary of $2,500 a year was created, which superintendent will be responsible to the board through the superintendent of schools.

The resolutions adopted and making these changes, were presented by a committee created in 1925 to consider the methods of other boards of the state and select those best fitted for the successful operation of the school system of this city.

The members of the board in attendance last night were Mesdames Nothdurft and Douthett and Messrs. Love, Young, Butler, McIlvenny, Dietterle and Ligo. All were present at the consideration of the resolutions with the exception of Mr.

Conditions In Portugal Are Obscure

(International News Service)

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The position in Portugal is obscure today, following last night's reports of a general uprising there against the dictatorship of General Carmona.

The last report states that marines, soldiers and police had joined with the rebels and that a cruiser had thrown shells on the land batteries.

Today it was evident that a strict censorship had been laid down, for cable officials said that while their lines were clear they had received nothing from Lisbon since 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. All attempts to communicate have been fruitless.

She obtained nothing, having been arrested when she returned to the bank for her valise and luncheon after being frightened away. She is an attractive girl, with light hair and blue eyes.

Many New Ideas Are Embodied In Bills Submitted To Legislature

Another Bill To Check Sale Of Firearms—Numerous Bills On Salaries

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. Representative A. B. Hess, Lancaster, has a bill in the lower branch of the legislature today which would take $1,450,012 from the motor license fund to pay the deficiency on the state road bond sinking fund for the period ending May 31, 1927. Charges of "apparent deficiencies" during the last administration brought forth comments from former Gov. Pinchot yesterday and the presentation of a deficiency bill last night may elicit additional expression from the former executive.

Other bills offered by Hess which also would take moneys from the motor license fund for the next two years include: $4,000,000 for township rewards $5,000,000 for county aid and $14,076,052 for the road bond sinking fund for the 1927-1929 biennium.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Representative Metzger, Dauphin, has a bill in the house today to provide permanent revocation of the licenses of automobile drivers who would be convicted a second time for driving while intoxicated. King George Tells Of British Aim

King Prorogues Parliament Concerning Conditions In China

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 8.—King George today prorogued parliament with one of the shortest speeches on record for a like occasion.

Chief interest in the King's speech centered on his remarks concerning the Chinese situation. After declaring that he had felt it necessary to despatch armed forces to the Far East to protect British residents in China, as a result of the recent rioting at Hankow and the Anti-British agitation throughout China, the King said it was the desire of the British government and people to place their future relations with China on a basis of friendship and good will. He declared for a policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of China.

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 8.—At a meeting of the local Rotary Club held here last night reports delivered by the 18 members showed that their work had resulted in the collection of $1,827 for the purchase of ready reference books for Westminster College.

The club, immediately after "Old Main" was destroyed by fire, voted to underwrite securing of $1,800 for new books and the campaign went "over the top". There are 18 affiliated with the Rotary Club here, and at the first meeting each agreed to be responsible for $100.

These books were needed so students could get started properly on their second semester.

McNary-Haugen Bill Likely To Be Passed By Senate This Week

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — The $250,000,000 McNary-Haugen bill will be passed by the Senate this week and delivered into the hands of a friendly House for final enactment into law before the adjournment of Congress, it was revealed today by an International News Service poll.

The greatest obstacle to this program, but one which the farm relief bill apparently will hurdle without trouble, will be the Curtis-Crisp measure, which the administration hopes to substitute for the bill approved by national farm organizations. Leaders of the farm bloc predicted rejection of the substitute and the International News Service poll indicated their prophecy was correct. It has been intimated, however, that President Coolidge will veto the bill when it reaches him.

The poll showed 50 senators favoring the McNary-Haugen bill, including 26 Republicans, 23 Democrats and one farmer-laborite. This number would insure passage of the bill under any circumstances. The opposition included 32 certain votes while eight senators were classed as "doubtful" and five were absent.

Coolidge Becomes Liveliest Topic

Butler's Prediction Coolidge Not Candidate Starts Tongues Wagging

FIRST TO DECLARE SELF ON SITUATION

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's prediction that President Coolidge will not be a candidate to succeed himself in 1928 became the liveliest political topic in the capital today.

More than ordinary significance was attached to his statement, for Dr. Butler has been a frequent house guest of the Coolidge's. Only a few weeks ago he spent the week-end there. His relation with Mr. Coolidge have always been intimate and friendly.

Leads Sentiment

He stands out today, as a result of his speech in New York, as the first Republican leader of prominence to publicly proclaim Mr. Coolidge's "unavailability" in 1928 because of the third term aspect of his candidacy. Other prominent Republicans have given voice to the same sentiments in private conversations. Most Republican leaders have been content, for publicity purposes at any rate, to ride along on the Coolidge wagon and await developments.

Only two other Republicans of note have had anything at all to say on the subject for publication purposes. Ralph E. Williams of Oregon, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee, recently stated that "if Mr. Coolidge is a candidate he will have a hard fight on his hands," and Col. George Harvey intimated in an interview abroad that Mr. Coolidge would not care to risk the third term bugaboo. Harvey later hastened to assert his remarks had been misinterpreted.

Refuse To Be Quoted

Most of the administration senators declined to be quoted today on Dr. Butler's prediction, although all of them had something to say about it privately.

Senator Shortridge (R) of California, a consistent supporter said: "We can elect Calvin Coolidge or any other Republican in 1928. As to whether President Coolidge will be a candidate no one knows except the man involved."

Senator McMaster (R) of South Dakota, said: "In my judgment President Coolidge will be a candidate unless unforseen circumstances arise to prevent it. It is debatable whether the American people will consider another term his third term."

Western Republicans who are known to be sympathetic with the candidacy of Frank O. Lowden, because of his championship of farm relief, generally declined to be quoted. Their private comment, however, reflected some approval of Butler's speech.

Only Small City Visited

Prince William is a distinctive type from other royal visitors to our country. Years ago he renounced all rights to the throne and at the same time refusing all financial aid that is given members of the royal household, preferring to make his living by his own efforts. He is democratic, ambitious and therefore appeals to the American people. He speaks good English with only the slighest tinge of an accent.

In connection with this lecture tour here he is writing a series of articles about him American impressions for a leading Stockholm daily. His style is excellent and his observation acute so that these articles are likely to be published in book form, also to be translated into several languages.

New Castle, not to be outdone by the big cities in which he is appearing, is planning to do its utmost to create a favorable impression as one of the smaller cities in America.

There is no other city the size of New Castle so honored by a visit from this distinguished guest. This is a rare opportunity for the people to show their civic pride and at the same time be entertained in such a pleasing manner.

Town Talk

Speaking of cars used by police, the patrol wagon is almost a thing of the past as far as its operation in police business is concerned Rarely is the "wagon" used excepting to haul in a barrel of booze or signs effecting traffic. The two big cars are in use almost continually and they have replaced the police patrol apparently.

With the popularity of the motion pictures and the absence of road shows the death-knell has apparently been sounded, here at least for the "Stage Door Johnnies." Time was when young men dolled like fashion plates clustered in groups about the doors of theaters to watch the girls depart for their notels. Seldom nowadays does one see a sheik near a theater.

Where is the "bag smasher" of Horatio Alger, Jr., fame gone to? And where has gone the bootblack who once shined your shoes at any place and any time? There are a few newsboys who still carry grips and packages for ladies but they do not energetically press this vocation. If they did they would make some extra dimes. The boy with the polish box slung over his shoulder has been replaced by the different stands.

Overcoat thieves steal at random and Joe Chip can sympathize with a jazz king who recently lost his coat in the same place and same manner at Youngstown. Joe while a boxer hung his coat in a Youngstown institution and it was stolen. He declared what he would do but the coat never was returned. The jazz king's coat costing considerable money was stolen. He said plenty but he has not had his coat returned. A good motto would be "check your coat" not only in Youngstown but anywhere you may happen to be.

Another election bill before the house today provides that in cities of the third class electors need not register unless they have moved from one district to another. The bill was offered by Representative Wilson, McKean.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Salaries of Mayors in cities of the second class could be raised to $15,000 under the provisions of a bill introduced by Representative Marcus, Allegheny, and sent to committee today. Another Marcus bill would permit a $10,000 salary limit for members of council in such cities.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Members of the House and senate will receive salaries of $4,000 at any regular session if a bill in the house today, sponsored by Representative Howe, Allegheny, should be passed. A constitutional provision prohibits members of the two houses from accepting an increase this session.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — A bill to license barbers in Pennsylvania, sponsored by Representative Detrich, Allegheny, is pending in the legislature today. The bill would create a board of examiners and registration and provide a registration fee of $2.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Representative James, Cambria, has a bill in the house to protect the public health by fixing a fine of from $10 to $50 or imprisonment of from 10 to 30 days for persons found guilty of depositing garbage in any water shed or at any place where drainage would carry it to the water supply of a community.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Salary raising for county officers by the General Assembly would be checked under the provisions of a bill presented by Representative Helen Grimes. The bill provides that the county commissioners and the paying officers of any county shall constitute a salary board with power to fix salaries. She contends that at present when efforts are made locally to secure an increase in salary and failure results, a bill providing for the increase is presented to the legislature for a salary raiser.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8. — Opponents and proponents of the Wilson bill which would repeal the Ludlow Act by changing the minimum sentence of persons convicted of crime, will have an opportunity to be heard Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 15. The judiciary special committee announced a hearing on the bill for that date today. Former Representative Benjamin Ludlow, Representatives of welfare associations and reform organization will be here to take part in the discussions.

Prepare For Erection Of New Junior High

Board of education at its meeting last night passed resolutions authorizing the issuing and sale of $600,000 worth of improvement bonds, the balance of the $750,000 issue authorized by the vote of the people at the special election last May. The balance of the issue authorized was issued September 1, 1926.

The bonds are to be issued in denominations of $1,000 each, are to be numbered from one to 600 and bear 4 1-4 per cent interest. They are to be known as Series B of the Authorized Improvement Bond Issue of 1926.

They will bear the date of April 1, 1927, and will bear interest coupons payable in April and October. Beginning in 1947, the first ten bonds by number are to be redeemed and so on in rotation until April 1, 1857, when the final $50,000 worth of bonds have been redeemed. In a majority of the years $80,000 worth of bonds will be redeemed.

All the legal phases of the issue were taken care of by a number of additional resolutions, which provided for the filing of a statement of indebtedness, the authorization accorded the secretary of the board to advertise for bids, the levying of taxes to pay interest and redeem bonds, the authorization to the president and secretary of the board to sign the bonds, the manner in which they may be registered, etc.; the approval of the legality of the issue at the expense of the board by Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay of Pittsburgh, and the opening of bids on March 8, 1927.

In the consideration of the resolutions Mrs. Nothdurft raised the question of issuing such a large amount, being under the mistaken impression that this was in addition to the authorized issue of $750,000. Mr. Young made a statement showing that this was but the balance of the authorized issue and showed that it was desired to enter into contracts for the new Euclid Avenue Junior High school by the first of April and also for the addition to the Senior High school, and that even more money than provided would be needed. In this connection it was stated that the board might still issue $500,000 worth of bonds without the vote of the people, if necessary. Mrs. Nothdurft then withdrew her objection and the issue was approved by the votes of all with the exception of Mr. McIlvenny.

Seven Bills Up For Final Action

BY WILLIAM B. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8.—Seven bills face the senate for final passage today. It is not expected that strenuous opposition will develop toward any of them.

A fight is expected to center about three banking bills reported from committee last night.

At least one of them has strong opposition lined up against it and an effort will be made to recommit and keep it in committee.

Three of the bills up today for final passage are proposed amendments to various acts. None of them are considered of statewide importance except the Davis, Lackawanna, measure. It would divide the cities of the state into four instead of three classes. The bill also provides certain regulations governing second class cities under the new classification.

When Senator Leslie, Allegheny, chairman of the committee on banks and banking last night reported out the three banking measures from his committee, Senator Daix, Philadelphia, asserted that he did not know of any meeting of the committee or that the bills had been in any way considered. Leslie assured him that there would still be plenty of opportunity to oppose the measures.

Would Affect Banks.

Leslie's own bill about which a fight will center would prohibit banking institutions of any kind maintaining branches any where in the state and including the city of the parent concern. Its provisions are so drastic that the great banking institutions as well as building and loan organizations which have dozens of branches would be forced to close all but the headquarters. It would affect vitally some of the biggest banks in the state.

The Woodward bill also reported out, would prohibit the investment of funds of building and loan associations in syndicated or equal lien loans where they are divided between or among building and loan associations, individuals or corporations.

Woodward's bill would affect big banking interests in that city, some of which recently were under fire for alleged unsafe and unethical practices in the financing of huge projects. About it also will center a fight at some time during its appearance on the floor.

The bill of Senator Lamb, Venango, the other measure to come from committee would bring stock brokers under supervision of the state department of banks and banking. It also provides methods for taking over such concerns when found insolvent under much the same conditions as those which at present govern banking institutions.

Three bills on final reading passed the senate last night. They were the Schantz bill providing means for counties obtaining land and constructing buildings for incarceration of delinquent women; the Steele measure specifying conditions for the lighting of county bridges and the Mansfield bill classifying patrolmen and firemen in second class cities and fixing their compensation.

Among the new inundation of bills in the senate last night was that of Senator Harris, Allegheny, which stipulates conditions under which three per cent of the ballot boxes in each election would be opened and checked.

Under the Harris bill county judges would select three per cent of the total number of ballot boxes by drawing lots. The boxes selected would be opened and the vote checked. In case evidence of fraud were found, the bill specifies that the information shall at once be furnished to the district attorney who shall proceed against members of the election board.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.
Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.
No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.
If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.
Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

MEN ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY ARE TAKEN TO BUTLER

of the situation and counter plans made to get into the confidence of the gang, which were successful.

It was originally planned that the robbery should occur on last Saturday morning, but for some unknown reason, it was postponed until Monday morning.

Earl and Guy, the men arrested at Knox, Pa., left Sunday evening in a stolen car. The robbery was carried out as planned and in keeping with the provisions made by the state police.

The arrests here yesterday of Hockman, whom the police charge was at the head of the plot, William Matteson, Harry Coburn and R. D. Hiesey was the result of the information gained by state police officers planted in the gang.

Hockman previous to coming here was a resident of Clarion county. He is a World War veteran and saw service in an engineering regiment.

The men arrested here were removed to the Butler barracks last night by Sergeant M. J. Crowley and Troopers George Stinett and John Edelman, who made the arrests here with the assistance of Chief of Police Henry Dysart and George S. Kennedy, former county detective.

Scout Troops In Efficiency Contest

An efficiency contest is now in progress among the troops of the Lawrence County Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Quite a number of things are taken into consideration and points are to be given accordingly.

To make this contest more interesting, a cup will be given to the troop credited with the most points at the end of the three-month period, the duration of the contest.

All troops in the council are as ever prepared to take up this work and it is felt sure that keen competition will be had between the troops for the winning of the cup, which will be an honor for the boys of the winning troop.

LIVING FOR HUNDRED YEARS

THERE used to be considerable doubt whether it was possible for a human being to live for a century. Reports of centenarians were not convincing to people with a taste for statistics and documentary evidence. That doubt, however, has been pretty well swept away. Recently there have been a lot of news items about people alive or departed from life at anywhere from one hundred to one hundred and thirty-six years of age.

It will be observed, however, that practically all of these instances of extreme longevity have to do with people living simple, plain uneventful lives, so far removed from the world of action and progress that no attention is paid to them until their death. Really, is a long life so greatly to be desired when it can be said that the most important part of it is its end?

Far more desirable seems the ideal represented by the deathbed words of Theodore Roosevelt who finished his course at an age comparatively early, "I have had a full life and a happy one." Properly estimated, Roosevelt lived longer than any score of these centenarians put together.

UNPREJUDICED?—JUST WHERE ARE THEY

TO ASK a man or woman to be unprejudiced, unbiased and open-minded is to ask next to the impossible. We all have our likes and dislikes, our opinions and beliefs, our desires and purposes. This human trait is what keeps the world in a constant state of debate and conflict. It is the fermentation which keeps society ever in effervescence. Without it there would be no human progress.

The American jury has afforded an excellent opportunity to observe the prejudices and partisanship of Americans. Public sentiment on the prohibition question is being reflected daily in verdicts returned by juries in Volstead act violations. In those counties where "dry" feeling is strong indicted liquor law violators are receiving no quarter at the hands of jurors. In "wet" sections of the country conviction of prohibition violators has been found next to impossible. Legislatures make the laws, executives say they must be enforced, but prejudices and opinions of men and women in the jury boxes determine if they are enforced.

There has been a remarkable change in jury sentiment on the now waning conflict between the pedestrian and the motorist. When the automobile was "impractical and a public menace" and automobile owners represented only an infinitesimal part of the whole population, pedestrian juries conscientiously believed the pedestrian could do no wrong and so invariably gave him the advantage in automobile damage suits. The balance of representation in the jury box has since shifted to the automobile owner or user and the pedestrian seeking "exemplary and punitive damages" from the owner of the automobile which rolled him under wheel must account for his being on the right-of-way of the motor vehicle. Juries are not intentionally partial, but it is so much easier for humanity to see its side of the issue.

Just now only an idealist could conceive of a civilization in which all men would weigh both sides of every question without error.

SOVIET SURVIVES A CRISIS

OF SUCH is the perspicacity and penetration of the guardians of Russia communism, it is not an easy matter to catch them off their guard. They of all men know that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and even when subversive influences creep upon them through avenues not usually associated with the dreaded capitalism, their Argus eyes are upon them instantly.

There is the timely case of the dance. The youth of Russia, it has been noted, show a partiality for the Charleston and other modern American dances. Now politicians of less prescience would find nothing in these dances destructive of the establishment government. But these politicians of Moscow are politicians of penetration.

Are not these dances popular with the Russian bourgeois? Are they not seen in the night clubs of New York and London—the capitals of capitalism? Are they not prone to make the youth of all lands kin, to lead to fraternization with the enemy, to break down the barriers of hate? Can a proletarian girl move languorously in a waltz without yearning for bourgeois luxuries and softness, or dance the two-step without a longing for the fleshpots of Egypt, or see the Charleston without crying out "Oh, you capitalistic America?"

Subtle, you see, but sinister, devilish though deep, this new offense against the soviet morale. These bourgeois dances are destructive of the dictatorship of the proletariat and have been introduced in Russia for that treasonous purpose.

So the soviet master minds have banned them from Russia and prescribed a new dance made for endurance, with the lady jerked off her feet to wild, weird music to keep her mind on higher things and off seductive thoughts of the softness and luxury of the capitalistic state.

Wit isn't when it is inspired by ill humor.

We can't help wondering whether students of civilization class knickers as an improvement.

Keeping your feet on your desk doesn't hurt it much, except the sheriff is liable to come and get it.

The world gets better. At the age when the old-time boy was shooting birds, the modern ones are chasing "chickens."

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:26. Sun rises tomorrow 7:00.

The thing we like best about February is that it has but 28 days.

The weather is almost mild enough for the seed cataloges to be sent out.

Some folks think there are no opportunities for the young men and women of today, no one has yet swam across the Atlantic ocean.

The Rev. J. Frank Norris says he is prepared better than ever to do the work of the Lord. And if there is anything in a good steady aim, we believe he is telling the truth.

Recently Prohibition Director General Andrews stated that much of the whisky now being sold for medicinal purposes is bad. We'd like to call to his attention, if he does not know it, that the liquor being sold for beverage purposes isn't so very good, according to reports.

Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson is pretty good at disappearing but the next time she appears it will be in a more graceful way than through a kidnapping episode.

It would be inapt to call certain U. S. senators "Flat Tires" for there is no wind in flat tires.

Forty or 50 thousand dogs are said to be running at large, unlicensed, in the streets of Pittsburgh. What a fine opportunity for some enterprising candidate to get them all registered in time for voting at the next primary this fall.

The United States hasn't been out of debt since 1835, but that's nothing. Many of the citizens of the United States have never been out of debt and never will be.

Our idea of a living wage is enough to keep a little ahead of the neighbors.

Every man or woman of any wealth or standing who books passage for France is suspected of having the divorce idea in mind. Everyone who goes to Germany goes for the purpose of drinking is another commonly accepted idea. Because a relatively few are interested in these things the whole lot must be branded. The same idea prevails with criminals. A crook thinks every man is a crook and you can't convince him otherwise.

King Benjamin Purnell of the House of David colony is to go on trial in May. Here's hoping, for the benefit of those who like snappy risque reading, that the judge won't hold the trial in secret.

The many buckwheat fields in and around Clarion are saving the game birds in that vicinity this winter, the game wardens report. Next fall when it is lawful to shoot quail and other birds there ought to be a lot of buckwheat fed birds waiting on the hunters.

Lack of exercise is being given as the cause of the suicides among the young men and women, some of whom have done the Dutch act at school. The Daily Dozen has been recommended as a cure for suicides. A dozen or more stripes in the woodshed, or more modernly speaking, the garage, would be the best kind of a daily dozen.

For the first time since the Taft administration a new automobile has been purchased for the use of the president. The old white house is about ready to fall in too, is the report from Washington, but in spite of these things, there are many willing to put up with the old buildings and old cars if they can get in there for four or eight years.

You can't buy concert tickets very early now for the big event is just two days away, but if you haven't yet bought your ticket better get busy at once. Thursday night is the time and if you want to occupy one of those comfortable seats buy your tickets as soon as possible.

There is said to be 2,000 surplus women in England and what to do with them is a problem. Why not follow the ideas of some of the other countries that are taxing bachelors and tax the lonely ones. That would start them chasing the men harder than ever.

The first top hat worn in England in 1797 started a riot because of the men who crowded around the wearer. He was fined $2,000 for inciting a riot. The first hobble skirts worn a number of years ago also started a riot, but with the present styles in vogue we are used to riots.

A few days ago a friend sent us a postcard from Chicago, his message concluding, "Booze here plentiful and cheap."

Next night, when we got Chicago over the radio, the usual slogan of that station, "The city where everybody is happy," was announced.

We wonder, we wonder.

Hercules had finished his 12 great jobs and on arriving home began giving his wife an earful of what a wonder he was.

Whereupon poor Mr. Hercules went out and got himself poisoned. Moral—Be a modest violet.

WHAT WE HAVE AND DO

Of the world's land, United States posses 6 per cent.

Of the world's population, our people make up 7 per cent.

Of the world's wheat, we grow 27 per cent.

Of the world's coal, we dig 40 per cent.

Of the world's telephones, we use 63 per cent.

Of the world's corn, we grow 75 per cent.

Of the world's motion pictures, we produce more than 80 per cent.

Comes a Hollander to boast that America has nothing to compare with Dutch windmills. And proudly we retort that Holland has nothing to compare with some of our American windbags.

What Lawrence County needs more than good roads is more good drivers.

THE BOY

He may soon forget them, but I shall ne'er forget
The laughing eyes of Buddy in the days when he was four,
The roguish lips which kissed me—oh, my cheeks can feel them yet!
Though never from his lips shall come such kisses any more.

He may not recall it, but once he rode my knee
And oft upon my shoulders high I danced him round the floor.
Let fame come on and crown him, behind that man I'll see
The chubby, roguish, little boy who needs me now no more.

For toys are quickly done with and swift the years go by
And boys forget the pretty clothes While once they proudly wore,
But when he stands before me with a man's look in his eye
I still shall see the little boy I romped about the floor.

Slaves of the Sun.
They Still Drink.
Where is the League?
Won $1,000 a Minute.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Professor Tchijevsky of Moscow, says "Man is the slave of the sun and its vast electrical power." Sun spots represent solar electrical energy that develops microbe life here, increasing diseases and their intensity. The learned man says the history of great plagues for the last thousand years supports his theory that sun spots are responsible for the present influenza epidemic.

We are, of course, products of the sun's life and heat, but part of the product is a more or less feeble thinking capacity. Use it, avoid colds and fatigue, live sanely and sun spots won't hurt you, or microbes, either.

Dr. Norris, New York's chief medical examiner, reports to Mayor Walker that there is no prohibition in New York, as regards whisky. There are as many "speakeasies" as there were saloons before prohibition. All of those that ever drank, still drink, but beer drinkers have been changed to bootleg whisky drinkers and will not cumber the earth as long as they might have done on a beer diet.

Also, bootleg customers please observe, nearly all liquor now sold is poisonous. Even doctors cannot be sure that prescriptions calling for rum will not poison the patient.

It is unsatisfactory for the bootlegger's customer, and a bright spot that you might look for is lacking. Saloons of the old kind are gone, but young people, boys and girls, drink whisky now, as they never drank it in old days, and when bootleg whisky shall have killed off the old bootleg customers, a new crop will be coming along.

You remember that we were invited and urged into the league of nations, because that league would substitute sweet reasonableness for war.

What about China? What has the league done there? Members of the league—Britain, France, Italy—are sending warships, men, arms, ammunition to China, to protect their "rights," in the good old way.

Have any of them asked the league's permission to do this?

Jules Regnier, young Frenchman, won $10,000 at Monte Carlo in ten minutes, and that "win" of $1,000 a minute is called a record. It may be at the roulette table, not at trente et quarante, where the limit is higher, and one might win $10,000 between two murmurings of the croupier's "les cartes passent."

While one player in a moment of passing chance wins $1,000 a minute, 100 others lose $10,000. No one ever wins in the long run. That young Frenchman wins $10,000 "between cocktails," then saunters out to dress for dinner with his easily collected 255,000 francs, as the gambling house press agent tells it. Next time, or a little later he may saunter out to blow out his brains before dinner. That also happens.

Firemen and enginemen on twenty-seven important railroads have won an increase of 7½ per cent in wages as a result of arbitration. Roads and men accept the desision.

That is an improvement on the old way of fighting it out in a long, destructive strike, sometimes including the blowing up of roundhouses, etc.

This decision means that 31,000 men will earn $5,000,000 more each year, a trifle more than $192 each on the average, or 64 cents a day.

That is not much, considering the cost of living, and the work the men do—and, anyhow, the interstate commerce commission will make the public repay the $5,000,000 a year to the roads if they need it.

Great corporations whose peace of mind depends to some extent, at least, on public approval and contented workers, show intelligence when they avoid fights and consent to share profits. There is enough for owners and workers, with intelligent management.

The new prayer book, with many changes, arranged by bishops of the Church of England, will be promulgated immediately. It is predicted that the new wording will come closer to the ideas of the Catholic church, although modernism will find the bride no longer promising to obey. The cynic will say it does not matter, since she does not obey either way. Prayers for the dead may be included in the new ritual.

Whatever the changes, they will probably cause more discussion in Great Britain than in Heaven.

The Rumanian government is moving troops, fortifying doubtful places to forestall any outbreak in favor of Prince Carol. That prince, oldest son of the king, wants the throne and thinks no trifling princely vagaries should prevent. Some of his relatives have other plans.

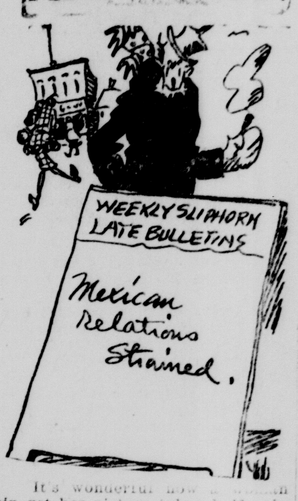

Later, the Russian government, growing stronger, richer, better balanced every day, may decide that no Rumanian king is necessary.

NOT ALL KNOWLEDGE IS POWER

Knowledge is power-sometimes. It is power only when it is practical knowledge.

The mere acquisition of facts and information may make a man informed, but unless those facts apply to what he undertakes they do not increase his power.

You may learn all the intimate facts about all the Kings of England without helping you appreciably in the cement business.

It may make it easier to live with yourself, but it will not increase your power.

Barrie has a play about a yacht full of educated people which goes aground upon an uninhabited island.

The only man who knows what to do is the uneducated butler.

He builds a shelter and hunts for food while the others stand helpless. What little education he had was of a practical sort that applied to the needs of the moment.

He had power because his knowledge applied there. In a drawing-room conversation the others would have had power because their knowledge fitted the needs of that situation.

Those who speak of the failure of education make the mistake of thinking that power is the only end of knowledge.

Knowledge is of three kinds.

There is knowledge that gives power; knowledge that gives culture; knowledge that gives wisdom.

Knowledge is like the food we take into our systems. Part of this food goes to make flesh, part to make blood and part goes to make the structure of bones.

So only a part of knowledge goes to make power. Some men without any broad education attain positions of great eminence because the narrow range of their information is all practical and applicable to their work.

Another part of knowledge feeds culture. It gives interests and ideas and appreciations that make men's lives more enjoyable and full.

And another part of knowledge gives wisdom. It builds self-control and understanding. A man may be powerful like Alexander the Great, or cultured like Oscar Wilde, and know not the meaning of wisdom.

And as Durant, using the popular adage loosely, says: "Knowledge is power, but only wisdom is liberty."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

TO DO AND TO DARE.

The present march of events in world affairs ought to convince Congress and citizens alike, that the philosophy and propaganda of the Pacifists are, as they always have been, pure bunk. There are three very serious situations facing the United States today, Mexico, Nicaragua, and China. Trained and competent armed forces are needed both on land and on sea. The lessons which should have been learned by this Nation from the Great War, were not learned.

As a young nation, the United States was confronted with the same situation in the last part of the Eighteenth, and the early part of the Nineteenth Centuries. The Thirteen Colonies had by reason of the military genius of Washington, and a few of his worth while officers, been enabled to win their independence. But no sooner had Washington taken the oath of office as President of the Nation, than men of the stamp of Thomas Jefferson began to preach Peace. Thomas Jefferson spent most of his time during the Revolutionary War in France. He was neither a soldier nor a worker for the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence written in his own hand. While many of his fellow Virginians were suffering at Valley Forge, he was enjoying the Peace of Paris. When he returned after the War was over, he organized by his brilliant political genius a great party that first, last, and all the time, has been opposed to any military organizations, either by way of Army or Navy in this country. Notwithstanding the various wars of Napoleon, the great European struggle of that day and generation, notwithstanding all the gratuitous insults which England and France under Napoleon, offered this Nation Thomas Jefferson and his political associates went serenely on in opposition to any effort made by the voters of the Nation to prepare the people for War, if it became necessary in order to preserve the dignity and honor of the new Nation. So great was this unpreparedness that when the War of 1812 did come, even the national capital was burned and sacked, and only the individual sailor and fighting ability of the men who went down to the sea in ships saved the day.

It is so now. Last week every marine jack who could be put aboard ship, was sent from the San Diego station to China. Whether they are sufficient or not to do the work which they may be called upon to do, is another question. The marines have a great reputation to maintain, for it has always been declared that the "marines have landed", and "have the situation in hand". But after this exodus from the Pacific Coast, there are few marines left for any future eventuality.

What the future holds for us with the Latin peoples of the two Americas, and with the Mongolian population of Asia remains to be seen. But when the President recently called attention to the people of this country that both Militarism and Pacifism were to be feared, it conclusively showed that there is danger in the air. When a cold austere New Englander talks as did President Coolidge, it is time for the citizenship of the Republic to stand at attention.

Safety Sam Says:

Laws [illegible] t' guarantee safety until some way is found t' make sure there's as much power in th' driver's noodle as there is under th' car's hood.

POEMS-HOVE

BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Adonais" by Percy Bysshe Shelley.

This suberb elegait poem cannot be given here in its entirety, of course. It is one of Shelley's crowning achievements—the sorrow of one great poet over the passing of another. Someone once wrote:

"Keats died—who knows?—in the wild bloom of youth,
And learned all Truth,
That 'Adonais' might be sadly sung!"

In the mystery of existence it is possible that one glory must fade in order that another may appear. Every great emotion springs from pain; and Shelley's genuine grief at the death of Keats is manifest in these august lines. They drip with tears.

I weep for Adonais—he is dead!
Oh, weep for Adonais! though our tears
Thaw not the frost which binds so dear a head!
And thou, sad Hour, selected from all years
To mourn our loss rouse thy obscure compeers,
And teach them thine own sorrow! say: "With me
Died Adonais; till the Future dares
Forget the Past, his fate and fame shall be
An echo and a light unto Eternity!"

He is made one with Nature; there is heard
His voice in all her music, from the moon
Of thunder to the song of night's sweet bird;
He is a presence to be felt and known
In darkness and in light, from herb and stone,
Spreading itself where'er that Power may move
Which has withdrawn his being to its own;
Which wields the world with never-wearied love,
Sustains it from beneath, and kindles it above.

He is a portion of the loveliness
Which once he made more lovely; he doth bear
His part, while the one Spirit's plastic stress
Sweeps through the dull dense world, compelling there
All new successions to the forms they wear,
Torturing the unwilling dross that checks its flight
To its own likeness, as each mass may bear,
And bursting in its beauty and its might
From trees and beasts and men into the heaven's light.

The breath whose might I have invoked in song
Descends on me; my spirit's bark is driven
Far from the shore, far from the trembling throng
Whose sails were never to the tempest given;
The massy earth and sphered skies are riven!
I am borne darkly, fearfully, afar;
Whilst burning through the inmost veil of heaven,
The soul of Adonais, like a star,
Beacons from the abode where the Eternal are.

Girl, At 13, Finishes First Year In College

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 8.—Completing her first term in Carroll College, San Antonio, before she has reached her 13th birthday is not the only honor for Augusta Stockton of London, Tex. She has, in addition, made one of the best scholastic records of any student in the college.

Despite the fact that Augusta is so far advanced in her studies she is not a "child prodigy" in the generally accepted sense of the word. She is a normal, likeable friendly sort of girl. She doesn't regard the remarkable record that she has made in college as "anything to write home about".

AUGUSTA STOCKTON

Knew Alphabet Early

According to her father, D. H. Stockton, Augusta mastered the letters of the alphabet at the same time that she learned to talk and could read perfectly when she was only three. She started to school when she was five and skipped the first grade entirely, beginning in the second instead.

During her second year in high school little Augusta had the misfortune to suffer a broken leg early in the school term; regardless of the handicap she managed to make two grades during that particular year. Even the weary, painful weeks that she passed in the hospital were not lost, for she continued her studies in bed and took unusual interest in psychology, which she had attending physicians explain to her.

Augusta says that science and English are her favorite studies. But she frankly admits that her liking for a particular course depends largely upon the instructor.

What She Wants to Be

Several years ago Augusta made up her mind to become a medical missionary, a calling which she feels opens the greatest possible field of service to others. To this end she is directing her efforts.

She is planning to complete her "pre-med" work at Carroll College and then enter Baylor Medical College at Dallas, Texas. The completion of a course in medicine usually takes a number of years, but Augusta believes that she can receive her degree of medicine in the shortest possible period and then take up her work in foreign fields.

Augusta likes to attend parties. She says she never missed one while in high school or during her first term in college. She is a believer in working hard and then playing hard.

She staunchly declares that she has "never had to study very hard".

"Look it up for yourself and you'll remember it longer" is dad's confession that he doesn't know a word's definition.

Reports Differ On Fate Of Chinandega, Nicaraguan Town

From Reliable Source Comes Information Liberals Holding City

(International News Service)

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Feb. 8.—Conflicting reports have been received today as to the result of the fighting at Chinandega.

One report from Diaz forces claims that the Conservatives have again taken possession of the city and that the Liberals have been routed with heavy losses.

From Liberal sources, however come reports that the Liberals are still giving battle to the Conservatives within Chinandega.

Heavy damage is reported to have been done to the city and several entire squares are reported to have been ruined by fire which broke out during the engagement.

The casualties on both sides are reported to have been heavy with the dead estimated at approximately 100.

Conservative headquarters charge that the Liberals have done considerable damage to lines of communication and have attempted to make their depredations difficult of repair in an attempt to hamper the service of supply between Managua and Corinto.

Dr. Nicholas Butler Declares Coolidge Not To Be Candidate

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Considerable interest and conjecture was aroused in political circles today as a result of the prediction of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, that President Coolidge will not be a candidate for renomination in 1928.

Dr. Butler's prediction was made last night in an address at the Riverside Republican club, of the Ninth assembly district.

Dr. Butler was a guest at the White House last week. He disclaimed any direct information from Washington, however, asserting that he voiced only his own opinion.

Dr. Butler said:

"I am taking it for granted that when President Coolidge thinks the right time has come he will make a public statement of his unwillingness to have his name considered in connection with the republican presidential nomination of 1928.

"One of the president's strongest characteristics is his common sense, and common sense dictates this course."

Dr. Butler, who sought the nomination in 1920 and is being supported by "wet" New York republicans for the honor next year, cited as among his reasons for thinking President Coolidge will eliminate himself the "possibility that the third-term issue may be raised in 1928." He continued.

"The Republican party is going to have a hard enough time in 1928 without inviting certain defeat through injecting the third term issue."

The issues that will have to be met in 1928, Dr. Butler told the republicans, are: Prohibition, the relief of the farmer and foreign policy.

Real "Rubber" Egg Thrown At Wife; Then She Gets Sore

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—H. Perkins Kelly was arrested this morning after he had heaved a brick through the window of the Acme Magic and Novelty store. His explanation follows:

"Last night I went in there and bought a couple of rubber eggs. When I got home I threw one at my wife. It certainly was a good shot, it hit her in the face. Instead of bouncing away you can imagine my surprise when I saw her face covered with real egg. And it didn't smell any too good at that. My wife couldn't see the joke and smashed me all over the head with a frying pan. So as soon as I was able to get around to do it I heaved the brick through the window.

Rushing Work On Preparation Of Hospital Plan

Jameson Memorial Hospital work is now in the hands of the architects, W. G. Eckles Company who have made preliminary drawings and as soon as the architects can prepare the details, work of the actual construction of the building will be started.

Mr. Eckles says that the firm has been working with Stevens and Lee, architects of Boston and Toronto on the plans for the most modern and best type of construction for hospital buildings and that the preliminary drawings have been made and will likely be approved by the building committe at its meeting today.

The architects have finished the preliminary drawings and will start at once on the details but it will be some time before plans will be ready for the contractors, but it is likely that by the time spring weather permits, ground will be broken for the foundations of the new hospital building.

Mr. Eckles says that in designing and planning for such an extensive building as Mr. Jameson is presenting to the city it will not only take a large force continually at work in the architect's offices, but that they wish to give all opportunities to suggestions so that the final plans will produce a building without peer and one that will be satisfactory to the people of the city.

MAKE CHANGES IN OPERATION OF SCHOOL BOARD

Ligo, who was detained and arrived late.

Unanimous Vote

Upon the presentation of the resolutions, the first to be considered was that creating the position of superintendent of buildings, grounds and equipment. This was finally approved by the unanimous vote of all members of the board.

In the consideration of the other changes, especially in the matter of the creation of the duties of business manager for the secretary of the board, the elimination of standing committees of the board and delegation of purchasing powers to the superintendent of the board, up to the maximum of $100 without action of the board, J. H. McIlvenny voiced objections, principally, because, as he said that he thought that it was a matter of consideration before acting and because it appeared to him that possibly the powers of the board were being curtailed, while those of the superintendent of schools in particular were being increased to a point [illegible] make them dangerous.

...ds In Vogue

C. H. Young, member of the committee in charge of the drafting of the resolutions, answered the objections of Mr. McIlvenny by stating that the changes had only been proposed after mature consideration of the best methods in vogue throughout the state and with the object of bettering the operation of the schools of the city. He said the object was to relieve the board of petty details in order that "... intelligent and better service to the taxpayers in advancing the interests of the patrons of the schools. He said that the superintendent, in regard to the matter of expenditures delegated to him, would at all times be responsible to the board and would be inclined to keep within his appropriations, rather than go beyond them, because of his desire to show efficiency.

The rest of the board expressed themselves as favoring the ideas advanced by Mr. Young and voted for the resolutions, while Mr. McIlvenny stood on his contention in all cases with the exception of the position of superintendent of buildings, grounds and equipment namely, that further time should be taken to consider them, and voted negatively.

The resolution in regard to the changes of procedure for the board include the following changes: That all standing committees of the board are abolished and that business coming before the board and requiring consideration by a committee be referred to the committee of the whole or to a special committee as may be necessary; that the report of the secretary of the superintendent and secretary of the board be submitted by mail to the directors at least three full days before each meeting and that the report of the superintendent include reports of the superintendent of buildings, grounds and equipment and business manager and and such recommendations as require the action of the board.

Principal changes in the duties of the secretary as business manager are that he shall act as purchasing agent and receive, store and distribute books, supplies, etc., under the supervision of the superintendent and prepare and file an inventory of the books, etc., and in his duties as business manager shall be under the direction of the superintendent and report through the superintendent.

The new position of superintendent of buildings, grounds and equipment is designed to make a responsible agent to the board in construction, alteration and repair of buildings and in case where work is being done by contract and under direction of an architect, to act as agent for the board in inspection of such work; recommend through the superintendent such janitors and other employes as needed in continuous employment and have authority to employ for brief periods such workmen as are immediately necessary; be responsible for the maintenance and operation of heating, ventilating and mechanical equipment; to make a study of various types of furniture and equipment and recommend such equipment and furniture of the schools; keep records of fuel, light, power, water and other materials, etc.

The duties of the superintendent are enlarged to include recommendations of election of supervisors, principals, teachers; the discharge or retirement of employes under his supervision; to recommend textbooks, etc.; determine school boundary attendance districts; assign employes of the administrative department; prepare the annual budget; to have power within limits of detailed budget to approve and direct purchases and expenditures for school supplies in amounts not to exceed $100; direct continuous study of need of new school sites; to grant use of school auditoriums for other than school purposes and other duties already required.

Mid-Winter Harvest Work Being Done

Many farmers of Lawrence County have taken advantage of the fine weather of the last week in harvesting their corn crop. Many have been able to get their corn from the fields to the barns where the husker awaited it and the condition of the corn was found to be quite fair in spite of the fact that it lay for months in the winter snow and storms.

Last fall's heavy rains caught many of the farmers unprepared for such an unprecedented spell of wet weather. As a consequence they were unable to get their corn out of the fields into the barns. When attempts were made to haul it the teams or tractors would find themselves in the mud. Thus the shocks of corn were frozen tight into the soil until the present thaw softened the soil sufficiently that the stalks could be gotten out and yet the ground was still hard enough that the corn could be hauled into the barns.

This is a "long distance record" for the harvesting of the corn crop in this part of the country for never before in the history of the oldest inhabitants has it been known to have been so late in the winter before a chance was given to harvest corn.

The first of January found over half of the corn standing in the fields in all of this part of the country but during the spring weather of the past week a large amount of it was taken from the fields.

Graham To Speak In New York City

P. & O. Company Head To Discuss Development Of Motor Bus In Service

R. N. Graham, manager of railways of the Penn-Ohio System, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Metropolitan section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, at the Hotel Woodstock, New York, February 17.

Mr. Graham will be the only speaker on the program and his address on the place of the motor-coach and motor-bus in public transportation will be the theme for the entire discussion of the session.

The local railway manager was invited to make this address before the Metropolitan section because he and the company of which he is an official have been pioneers in the development of automotive transportation, both city and interurban. The Penn-Ohio designed the first interurban coaches of the class that are now the standard in many sections of the country and made studies of the place of coaches and busses in transportation that have been of widespread interest and use to transportation companies in all sections of the United States.

Mr. Calahan said that the headquarters of the society for Crippled Children had been moved from Butler to Harrisburg and that at the convention many of the improvements were brought forward. A business session was held at the luncheon hour at which certain items of interest to club members were taken care of.

EASTBROOK

A Good Roads rally will be held in the East Brook Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, February 9, for the purpose of discussing the appeal for a state road from East Brook to the Perry Highway near Leesburg.

All interested persons from Hickory, Scott and Washington townships are expected to be present.

A meeting of commissioners and other interested persons was held last Saturday evening at the New Castle Y. M. C. A. and after a full discussion it was decided to hold a rally meeting on Wednesday at which all people could join in this project of securing an improved road through their territory.

A macadam road has been built as far as East Brook for about 8 years but no great move has been made for some time to have this road extended. The road has been ashed by the township but now it is hoped to start a movement whereby a concrete road may be secured through Hickory, Scott and Washington townships reaching the districts of coal mines near Leesburg. Eventually it is hoped that this road may join up with roads to Mercer and Grove City.

Plants Indicate An Early Spring

Honeysuckle Leaf Buds Are Showing Green, Rosebuds Are Swelling

BEAVER FALLS, Feb. 8.—Spring is just around the corner, they say, and if leaf buds on vines, shrubs, and plants of various kinds may be accepted as a true indication, then the gladsome springtime will soon be with us, but as an individual, we are inclined to thing somebody will have their toes nipped before the real honest to goodness springtime arrives.

Yesterday, being an off-day insofar as work is concerned, we inspected a number of outdoor plants and to our surprise found leaf buds breaking on honeysuckle vines, in some instances showing fully an eighth of an inch. In some yards about town, the daffodils and hyacinths are peeking through the ground. Mock orange buds are swelling but like the rosebuds the green is not visible as yet.

Reports from various sections of town state outdoor plants are showing indications of spring but alas, and alas we fear we'll be compelled to shovel coal for sometime to come and carry the ashes out. It's quite probable the unseasonable weather of the past few days has aroused outdoor life, brought these leaves out prematurely and that they will freeze and die, just as they do in the fall.

Here's hoping however, that they prove true indications of the early arrival of spring.

Suggests Change In Surety Bond For School Funds

In a communication received from the Union Trust company, the suggestion was made to the board of education to permit that institution to substitute for the surety bonds now maintained as a protection to school funds on deposit in the bank, U. S. bonds or U. S. securities.

It was stated that the fluctuation of the amount of school funds on deposit in this bank was so great as to necessitate a constant change in the bond, or else have a bond greatly in excess of the amount on deposit.

It is proposed that the bonds or securities put up as security be placed with the Federal Reserve bank or some approved Pittsburgh bank, subject to and under the control of the board of education. The communication was from George A. Carpenter, secretary-treasurer of the Union Trust company who also stated that this proposal was also made in regard to any school funds that might also be in the First National Bank of Lawrence county or Mahoning Trust company.

The board referred the matter to Attorney W. J. Moffatt, attorney for the board for an opinion.

Give Permission For Instructors To Attend Conventions

Application of R. F. Marshall penmanship supervisor and Emilie H. Solomon supervisor of art in the schools of this city for permission to attend conventions having to do with their work during the month of April were received by the board of education last night.

The application of Mr. Marshall asked that his salary continue as usual and that his expenses be paid. That of Miss Solomon simply requested permission to attend the convention.

Members of the board expressed the opinion that to pay the expenses of supervisors in attending these conventions might establish a precedent that would be hard to overcome and voted to permit these instructors to attend the conventions but at their own expense.

The convention that Mr. Marshall desires to attend will be held in Philadelphia April 27, 28 and 29. That which Miss Solomon asked to attend is known as the Eastern Art convention and will be held in Philadelphia April 20, 21, 22 and 23.

Lawrence County Men Veteran's In Service Of State Department

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8.—Through the Treasury Department of the state of Pennsylvania there passes an enormous amount of money each year. Millions of dollars, more millions perhaps than most of us can comprehend, and yet Lawrence county is intimately associated with almost every dollar of it.

It may be news to many Lawrence county people that two veterans of the Treasury Department are Lawrence county men, and because of their long service have positions of importance in this branch of the state government. The two are David H. Matthews of New Castle, who has been in the Treasury Department for 30 years, and J. G. Martin of New Wilmington, who has been in the department for 18 years.

By what seems to be a coincidence they are in opposite departments of the Treasury, Mr. Matthews being in charge of the receipts of money, while Mr. Martin is in charge of the disbursing department. It is Mr. Matthews' duty to receipt for the money as it comes in and to render a daily balance of the department, while the vouchers for expenditures go through the department headed by Mr. Martin.

Any time one wants to know just what condition the treasury of Pennsylvania is in, a word with Mr. Matthews does it. In a moment he has the balance figures for the day before and the figures he will quote you sound like the total fortune of a multi-millionaire. To illustrate. In a conversation with Mr. Matthews on Monday, he got out the totals of money collected in the state for the fiscal year ending May 28, 1926. The total read $158,897,433.22. This amount he had receipted for. At the same time he showed the amounts which Mr. Martin had paid out, $149,937,-242.92. Just the difference between the two is an enormous fortune.

Mr. Matthews was for many years a cigar merchant on East Washington street. In January, 1897, when Ben Haywood of Mercer county took office as state treasurer, Mr. Matthews came into the department and has been there ever since. Administrations have come and gone, corruption has given way to reform, a new capitol has been erected, and still he is on the job receipting for fortunes and rendering a true account of each day.

When he first came to the Treasury Department there were but two funds, the general fund and the sinking fund. Now there are 36 separate and distinct funds covering highways, game, insurance, education and what not. A movement is on foot at the present time to consolidate many of these funds into the general fund, but so long as the movement includes the game and fish fund it will undoubtedly meet with stiff opposition.

While Mr. Matthews was conversing on the moneys received each year he gave the total received as Pennsylvania's share of the profits from tolls from the recently opened Delaware river bridge. For six months it is $236,-670, which means that this is about one-fourth of the net profit on the bridge for one year.

Mr. Martin is also a veteran in the Treasury Department, although not so much so as Mr. Matthews. Mr. Martin came to the department in 1908, when John O. Sheatz was treasurer. His office is just across the hall from Mr. Matthews, in the main corridor of the Capital building.

While both of them have been here many years, they are still Lawrence countians and think enough of their citizenship there to go home every year and vote. Which might be an object lesson to some of our dilatory citizens who find it too much trouble to walk a square or two to exercise that privilege. These two gentlemen travel some 600 miles to do it.

FOR
Sour Stomach
PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips". Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug-store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

(From News Bureau State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8.—One of Lawrence county's neighbors, Attorney Samuel Walker of Butler, Pa., became one of the official family on Monday morning, when he was sworn in as a member of the Public Service commission. With him as an interested spectator was Dr. Robert B. Greer of Butler, who was graduated as Doctor of Medicine but who would sooner talk politics than do an appendectimy.

Mr. Walker is uncertain as yet just where his duties will take him most. He will probably have to be in Harrisburg on Monday and Tuesday of each week, but the balance of the week he will probably be in the Pittsburgh district, which means that any Lawrence county disputes before the commission and which require the services of a commissioner on the scene, will be heard before Mr. Walker.

Your Income Tax

Income Tax in a Nutshell:

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,500 or more or gross income of $5,-000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $3,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

WHEN? The filing period ends March 15, 1927.

WHERE? Collector of internal revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? Instructions on Forms 1040A and 1040; also the law and regulations.

WHAT? One and one half per cent normal tax on the first $4,000 in excess of the personal exemptions and credits. Three per cent normal tax on the next $4,000. Five per cent normal tax on the balance of net income. Surtax on net income in excess of $10,000.

No. 20.

While ordinarily the basis of determining taxable gain or deductible loss is cost, certain exceptions are provided by the revenue act of 1926. One is that if the property has been included in the taxpayer's last inventory the basis shall be the last inventory value thereof. In order to reflect the net income correctly inventories at the beginnig and end of each year are necessary in every case in which the production, purchase, or sale of merchandise is an income producing factor. The inventory should include raw materials and supplies on hand that have been acquired for sale, consumption or use in productive processes, together with all finished or partly finished goods. Only merchandise, title to which is vested in the taxpayer should be included in the inventory.

If the property was acquired by gift after December 31, 1920 the basis is the same as it would be in the hands of the donor, or last preceding owner by whom it was not received by gift. For example a man in 1921 bought stock in a corporation at $100 a share, kept it until January, 1922, when it was worth $120 and then gave it to his son, who in 1925 gave it to his wife, the stock being worth $150 a share. If in 1926 the wife sold the stock at $200 a share the taxable gain is not $50 but $100 a share the gain over the cost to the preceding owner who did not acquire the stock by gift.

In computing the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired by gift or transfer in trust on or before December 31, 1920 or by bequest, devise or inheritance the basis is the fair market value of such property at the time of acquisition. For example a taxpayer received in 1919 a gift of real estate having a fair market value of $10,000 which he sold in 1925 for $15,000. The original cost to the donor was $12,000. The taxable gain however is $5,000.

There are 30 fences, most of which have to be jumped twice. One of the jumps is a six-foot ditch, with a five-foot high fence in front to be cleared first. Aimee McPherson Arouses Chicago

Great Crowd Flocks To Coliseum To Hear Woman Preacher

THREE HUNDRED HIT "SAWDUST TRAIL"

By GENE HOFFMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Won by her wit and then converted by her fervor, three hundred Erstwhile indifferent Chicagoans today had become ardent subscribers to the "old time religion" as preached by Aimee Semple McPherson.

They were a mere handful of the mighty throng that last night squirmed, pushed and fought its way into the coliseum to hear the opening sermon of the famous Los Angeles woman evangelist. Approximately 5,000 persons were successful in the struggle for admittance.

Five thousand more milled around outside begging to be allowed to enter. Fifty policemen were called to preserve order. Mrs. McPherson characterized it as one of the greatest revivals of her career.

"I'm tremendously interested in radio," said Mrs. McPherson, as a prelude to a series of humorous remarks that soon had her vast audience reeling with laughter.

"But I don't care anything about radio operators," she added soberly.

The famous red hair that figured so prominently in the late investigation of her disappearance which linked her name with that of Kenneth G. Ormiston, was piled high on her head and glistened prettily under the white lights above the improvised pulpit.

She was dressed in a simple white frock, similar to that worn by nurses, and on her lips and cheeks was a faint touch of rouge. All in all she presented a very charming picture.

She chose for her text the sixteenth chapter of St. Mark. "Go Ye to all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

Despite the fact that many of her listeners had gone to the Coliseum out of sheer curiosity, Mrs. McPherson seemed to have won them all. Only 300 "hit the sawdust trial," but before the services were concluded the entire gathering appeared on the verge of sobbing.

She will preach her final sermon here, tonight.

Knapp Again In Jail Cell

"Bargain Bond" Dealer Is Surrendered By His Bondsmen At Pittsburgh

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8.—Charles E. Knapp, principal in the $320,000 Brotherhood Savings and Trust company "bargain bond" deal, was again behind bars of the County jail here today, on a writ vacating his $25,000 bond, upon which he was released Friday, and Lee Ratner, his attorney, was at liberty on $25,000 after an altercation in which Ratner is believed to have suffered a broken rib.

Knapp was re-arrested when Harry Goldwasser, of Pittsburgh, asked that his bond be vacated, after a hectic half-day of court procedure in which Ratner came to blows with patrolmen in a police station, and was arrested, first on a disorderly conduct charge, and later on a charge of conspiracy and false pretense in engineering Knapp's release.

While Knapp's counsel and officials engaged in legal fireworks, A. L. Edwards, district attorney of Clearfield county, arrived in Pittsburgh with warrants for Knapp's arrest in connection with alleged fraudulent stock promotion in Clearfield. After Knapp was re-arrested Edwards served notice that when the Pittsburgh bond salesman was released again, a Clearfield county official "would be waiting on the jail steps to arrest him."

Let Contract For Electric Lamps

Contract to furnish electric lamps in the schools of the city was awarded by the board of education last night to J. P. Merrilees, at his bid of twenty-four percent discount, of purchases made totalled $600 during the year. His bid was the same as a number of others received.

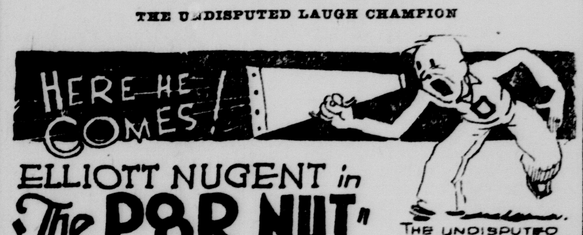

The suggestion of Mr. Merrilees, that if the city and school district purchases were considered as one unit and the purchases of both amounted to $1,200 a year, that an additional rebate of three percent would be available to both the city and the school district, was the basis of securing him the contract.

No Fear Now of Offense!
So Sweet and Clean Inside!
No Offensive Vapors From the Pores

Once a person realizes the wonderful properties in cascara, no other laxative in the market would ever be considered.

It's no trick to "clean out the bowels." Dozens of things will do that. But a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as so much dew! The old-fashioned way was "salts". They get action, but they take the mucous membrane along with the waste matter! Mineral oils are gentler, but they leave the bowels with a film of poisons for the blood to carry off through the pores. But when you cascarize the system, you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

If you have the habit of taking medicine for constipation, or even for auto-intoxication, stop it. For a candy cascaret is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them, and the taste tempts most grown-ups to have "more."

And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of deodorants, even in warmest weather! Try a cascaret tonight—see how you feel next day, and for days after! With the skin fresh and fragrant. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

(International News Service)
SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Gomer Hughes, 24, employed as a motor runner in a local mine, committed suicide early today by locking himself in a room at his home here and turning on the illuminating gas, according to police.

He had received his pay yesterday and had spent the night drinking, officials said.

A mother, for whom Hughes was the sole support, survives.

Gas Made Woman's Stomach Feel Hollow

"I had gas on the stomach and would wake up with a hollow feeling as if I had not eaten for days. Since taking Adlerika, my appetite is good and nothing disagrees with me."—Mrs. Mary Noble.

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL cleansing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, like occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful always brings relief.

Doctors Praise Adlerika.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. F. M. P. (name withheld by request): "I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In New Castle at Love & Megown's.

Minneapolis Orchestra To Play Compositions Of Peter Tschaikowsky

The complete afternoon and evening program for the Minneapolis Orchestra concerts on next Thursday have arrived and of much interest to the music lovers of the city is the fact that Peter Llyitch Tschaikowsky will be the most popular composer for the day. To those who are not versed in the history of music, the above unusual name will mean little but to those who love to know about the lives of great men, Tschaikowsky's life offers more than usual interesting reading.

Because of the high interest in the city in the concerts for Thursday, The NEWS offers some information here about the guest composer which is not generally known and will not likely find its way to the printed programs.

Tschaikowsky was born in a far Eastern province of Russia in 1840, his father being a man of some consequence and holding at the time a position as engineer to the Imperial mines. Unlike the famous Bachs, his family was unusually deficient in musical feeling and even his French governess observed no extraordinary musical talent in Peter. He was sent to a school of Law and accepted later a position as a Government Clerk in the Ministry of Justice. It will no doubt be a consoling thought to many parents who are worried over an evident shiftless and unpromising disposition in their much beloved sons, to learn that Tschaikowsky up to his twenty-first birthday, showed little or no promise in his music, his study of law or in his activities in the employment of the government. He was commonplace in his ideas and frivilous and worldly in his life. But after the reverses of his father, and the loss of his mother to whom Peter was devotedly attached, Tschaikowsky seemed to find himself, gave up his official position and decided that music was to be his career, taking as his aim—'to be a good musician and to earn my daily bread.' For a considerable time he faced a life of poverty for the sake of his art.

However after a few years of trying existence, he made the acquaintance of a woman who for thirteen years, played the part of a godmother to him. This was Nadejda von Meck, who was the widow of a railway engineer who had amassed a large fortune and left her with eleven children. Nadejda von Meck, cared nothing for society, lived a secluded existence but passionately fond of music and upon hearing of Tschaikowsky's condition, gave him an allowance which enabled him to devote all of his time to composition. The letters between von Meck and Tschaikowsky were very frequent and the friendship was most intimate although it is a most singular fact, that the two never came into personal contact. When in later years, von Meck suffered financial reverses, she inflicted an irreparable injury to the composer's feelings in a letter which although never made public, was revealed in its contents to some extent when the composer wrote back saying:" Perhaps you hardly suspect how immeasureable has been your generosity. If you did, you never would have said that now that you are poor I am "to think of you sometimes." Although von Meck's difficulties were adjusted later Tschaikowsky super-sensitiveness caused him to suffer from the unkind insinuation for the rest of his life.

There was a sorrowful, melancholic strain about his whole life and even after one of his greatest triumphs he wrote: "why always this drop of gall in my honey-pot?"

In his visit to America in 1891 he met with unqualified success and it was on his return that he wrote his famous "Nut-Cracker" Suite from which four numbers will be played by the Minneapolis Orchestra on Thursday afternoon. In the "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy" he makes use of the celesta, an instrument played like the piano and giving bell like tones. It was upon his return to Paris from New York that he came upon this instrument and had it sent to Russia to use in the performances of his "Nut-Cracker" Suite.

At the evening concert of the Minneapolis Orchestra Mr. Verbrugghen will offer two numbers from Tschaikowsky: the Elegy in G. major for String Orchestra and his "Pathetique" Symphony. As time goes on this wonderful symphony is becoming more and more a favorite. Some of the depth of feeling which the composer has written into it can be gained from some of his letters. In one he wrote: "During my journey (to Paris) while composing it in my mind, I frequently shed tears." Again he wrote: "I suffered not only from torments that cannot be put into words (there is one place in the Sixth Symphony where they seem to me to be adequately expressed) but of a hatred to strangers, and an indefinable terror—though of what, the devil only knows." In contrast to this earlier in the year he has written: "You cannot imagine what joy I feel at the conviction that my day is not yet over and that I may still accomplish much. Perhaps I may be mistaken, but it does not seem likely."

The irony of all this can be fully appreciated when one knows that this great symphony was first performed on October 28, 1893 and at 3 a. m. on the morning of November 6th of the same year, Tschaikowsky died of the dreaded cholera.

There may be many in the audience at the big Scottish Rite Cathedral on Thursday evening, to whom the Sixth Symphony of Tschaikowsky will be just so much of musical sounds with little or no meaning, but to those who listen for the deeper message of the composer, the music of the "Pathetique" Symphony will reveal those tragic emotions and those inexpressible aspirations of Tschaikowsky's immortal soul.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 437 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

$50,000.00 Contest prize winning true story

IN True Story Magazine for March appears the most powerful true story ever written.

It is a tale so outstandingly different, so virile, so potent with truth and life and love and conflict, so deeply moving, so powerfully compelling that by unanimous decision of the judges it was awarded the first prize in the mammoth $50,000 true story contest recently conducted by True Story Magazine in which upwards of fifty thousand manuscripts were received from all over the world.

A Tale of the Cumberland Mountains

It is a story of the city and of the wilderness. Of a gently reared girl accustomed to the refinement and culture of genteel city life set abruptly down amid the Kentucky lumber camps, there to be swept off her feet, blinded to the realities of life, by forces over which she had no control. Of a community of rough-hewn mountain folk rent asunder by the coming among them of a girl whose sweet dignity and reserve, whose stylish mode of dress, everything about her so different from the girls they knew, aroused in the hearts of the river men and lumber jacks a raging storm of conflict.

A tale of rushing, log-jammed streams. Of primitive passions surging in the breasts of men who feared neither God, nor man, nor devil. Who constantly courted violent death as a part of each day's work. A tale of tears and blood and tragedy, of hate and love and jealousy. Of a titanic battle for a bewildered woman's heart. While over all hung the dread menace of the double-bitted ax, one blade of which was red. It is entitled "Stronger Than Death."

MARGERY

from the depths of whose grief-stricken heart comes this lonely cry.

"John Devignet still pleads with me to marry him and let him take me away from the hills and the drudgery of teaching in the little mission school, but it seems to me that the decision has been taken from my hands by fate. I want to go with him—oh, God, I'd give my soul to go, for I love him with every fibre of my being, but I can't drive away the picture of George's wistful, ashen, hopeless, pleading face, across that tawny current of spray and logs.

"I've tried to forget, but the memory clings too vividly. Is it that I must sacrifice my happiness in atonement for the crime that I have done?"

GEORGE ELLIS

Tall, diffident with strangers, slow of speech, this "Boss" of the lumbermen was big and handsome. And one of the most fearless of daring men that ever swung an ax or rode the logs in the boiling current of the treacherous river. His word was law among his men. But could he make it carry weight with a woman—and such a woman as Margery?

The Author says:

"Stronger Than Death" is an account of the tragic experience that befell a dear friend when she, a girl of culture and refinement, accepted the position as teacher in a mission school deep in the fastnesses of the Cumberland Mountains.

"I have written in the first person, first because the rules of the contest require that all stories submitted be in the first person, and second because I have set it down so nearly the way she herself told it to me that I feel justified in presenting it as coming from her own lips."

Wm. Sutherland.

The Author A World War Veteran

Written by Mr. H. M. Sutherland, world war veteran and resident of a Virginia town in the foot-hills of the Cumberland Mountains, it is the tragic drama that befell one of his dearest friends. Margery, about whom the story revolves, did not feel that she could do the story justice. The events were all too recent—so close that her perspective was lost. But she told it all to Mr. Sutherland. And he in turn, using rare discrimination out of his sympathy and understanding, has set down what is without doubt the most powerful true story ever written. Not a pretty story. Powerful stories rarely are. But a deeply moving story, a gripping story, an epic tale told just as it was lived. Easily the outstanding story of all the fifty thousand received in the greatest true story contest ever conducted. You will find it in True Story Magazine for March, now on sale, at all newsstands.

JOHN DEVIGNET

College-bred, son of the owner of the logging operations, John Devignet represented a side of life of which George Ellis knew but little. When he came to the logging camps as general superintendent, the men were prepared to laugh at him as a citified dandy who would quake at every shadow. But they found that he could take care of himself in war or love.

Program To Please Selected For Orchestra Appearance In City

To chose a program that will please everyone is an exceedingly difficult problem and yet that is the problem that confronted Mr. Henri Verbrugghen, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, when he came to select the numbers to be used on his New Castle programs.

When the manager of the orchestra, Arthur J. Gaines, came to New Castle in December to make arrangements for the concerts here, he was informed by Lr. Allan Urmson and others associated with the Scottish Rite Auditorium Association, that the visits of great symphony orchestras to this city are very infrequent and do not average one a season and because of this fact, it would be very unwise to have the programs too "modern" in their content.

As a result of this request, Mr. Verbrugghen has played very safe in that he has chosen some of the world's most popular standard classics, pieces that have thrilled audiences innumerable times in the past and shall continue to do so for the years to come.

One of these famous "war horses" which Mr. Verbrugghen and his immense orchestra will play at both the afternoon and evening concerts, is the Overture to "William Tell" by Rossini. This overture, however, is the only selection that will be used at both matinee and evening performances.

When one realizes that the great Rossini died just three years after the close of our civil war, one wonders just why his famous "William Tell" is yet popular today, and will be for years to come, one of the most popular program and opera house classics. The wonder is increased when one considers that hundreds of "popular" compositions are turned out yearly, which are positively dead in their appeal in one year of time. And yet with a bit of reflection, the reason for this is apparent in the fact that the one is turned out to hit the popular fancy of the moment, to reap immediate financial returns, regardless of text or musical content, while the other is the work of a master composer who was inspired in the production of his work.

After all, people will not be satisfied permanently with music that has not the qualities of genius in it, any more than they will continue to support a church, cheerfully, that fails to furnish them with insipration for their living.

Then again, the subject of the music has much to do with its appeal to the human heart, and its bid for permanence. The general public might be temporarily interested in the "Wabash Blues" or they might for a time be interested in the fruit merchant who was supplied with all the various fruits and vegetables but for some reason or other was temporarily out of bananas, but the story of this peculiar merchant will not interest them for long. Contrarily, however, the story of a people who have enjoyed peace and happiness in a beautiful mountainous country, but have suffered unbearable harassments and oppressions; who have witnessed the horrible experience of one of their own countrymen being forced to shoot an apple from the head of his own son; a people who finally join in arms and drive their tyrannical oppressors from their land, this is a subject that finds sympathy in every human heart that loves its native country and music that tells such a story in a dramatic and beautiful way, will find favor in the souls of men for centuries.

William Tell Overture in its opening movement paints a picture of sunrise in the beautiful Alps of Switzerland. Following this comes an Alpine storm which calls for the united efforts of brass, percussion, wood-wind and strings, in a way that there is no mistaking the terror caused by such a terrific outburst of nature. After the storm, the shepherd gathers his scattered flocks together (indicated by a call on the flute) and there is a beautiful slow movement based on a Swiss folk-song which is called the "Calm," indicating the peace and contentment of all nature after a refreshing summer shower. Finally comes the call to arms on the trumpets, the hastening and marching of men and troops and in the closing a tumultuous harmonic effect that infers that victory has been gained. The four sections are very easily discernible, even by those who are not accustomed to listening to symphonic programs. William Tell is in fact, one of the greatest pieces of program music ever composed, and will without doubt be a favorite at both programs on Thursday.

Harvard accuses the Princeton football players of biting the necks of the Crimson lads. And Cambridge doesn't look like Hollywood either.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

The simple evening meal, easily prepared and easily digested, is a rest and change for the cook and the family. This, of course, means the family whose digestion is in ordinary condition. The kidney beans with onion may not appeal to some. Another dish equally simple could be substituted, however, in the menu.

Kidney Beans and Onion
Lettuce French Dressing
Brown Bread Butter Jelly
Baked Apple and Cream
Tea or Milk

TODAY'S RECIPES

Kidney Beans with Onions—One can kidney beans, one large onion sliced, two slices of bacon. Fry out bacon and in the drippings slowly fry the onion until golden brown. Combine beans, onion and bacon in casserole. Cover and bake one hour until well blended.

Brown Bread—Two cups graham flour, two cups bread flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon, one cup light corn syrup, two cups milk (sweet or sour), one cup raisins. Sift dry ingredients, stir in syrup and milk, raisins which have been plumped and floured. Steam for three hours in one-pound coffee tins, well greased. Recipe for two loaves.

SUGGESTIONS

Give Them Air

It is well to keep the bed a few inches away from the wall so as to allow a free circulation of air around the sleeper.

Washing Overalls

The best way to wash overalls is to lay them on the washboard, soap them well and scrub hard with a brush.

Shiny Tub

It is well to keep a small bottle of kerosene in the bathroom closet to use for a final polish to the bathtub. It will give the porcelain a gloss.

Down Quilts

Cover the shabby quilt with a pretty sateen or cretonne, following the former lines of stitching. You will have practically a new quilt.

Spinach Loaf

Four cups cooked or canned spinach, two tablespoonfuls salad oil, salt, pepper, two hard-cooked eggs, one lemon.

Place the spinach in a saucepan with the salad oil and cook until most of the moisture has evaporated. Season to taste with salt and pepper and the juice of half a lemon and pack into small bread pan. Set in pan of hot water for about 10 minutes, turn out on to a platter and garnish with sliced hard cooked egg and lemon. Cream or Hollandaise sauce may be served with this.

Teachers To Meet In Two Institutes

Two local teachers' institutes are to be held in the Lawrence county schools on Friday, February 11. Shenango township teachers will meet Friday afternoon and evening at the Mission church at East New Castle, while the Wayne township teachers will meet Friday evening at the Bell Memorial church in Ellwood City.

Local teachers' institutes are very beneficial to the teachers and the school work as each teacher has an opportunity to express his views and all can receive benefit from the experiences of others.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 8.—"Let me pay his fine" came a voice from the court room as Morris Singer, 28 a taxi driver appeared in traffic court on a speeding charge. It was Detective Henry L. Hoffman who recognized Singer as the man who happened along in his taxi just as he and other detectives engaged in a gun battle with four bandits. Singer grabbed the arm of one bandit just as he was about to fire at Hoffman. After the story no fine was demanded.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Suzanne Lenglen, queen of tennis, will sail shortly for her homeland, France, with approximately $100,000 in American "celery" to her credit as a result of her extensive tour of the United States under the guidance of C. C. Pyle. The latter is said to have "cleaned up" over $50,000 on the venture. Vincent Richards received a $35,000 guarantee and Miss Browne $30,000 and a split in the net gate receipts.

This means that the tour, considered from every angle, was a huge success—just what the shrewd Mr. Pyle figured it would be.

But it doesn't mean that there is a gold mine in professional tennis or that it is a fruitful field for a large number of professional stars. The remarkable continental tour of this assemblage of stars was made possible by several unusual conditions — which may never exist again.

Nation Longed to See Her

First of all, there was a real desire lurking in the hearts of millions of Americans to see Suzanne, the "Incomparable", in action. Her feat in going through European tennis fields undefeated over a span of six or seven years — winning every important tournament in that time—had stamped her as the greatest player across the Atlantic. Her play against the Americans there, including Helen Wills, had more definitely established her prowess. Her failure to go through with her match in this country on a previous visit had further whetted the desire of others.

Professional tennis itself was a new venture—something to attract the crowd in itself. The prominence of Richards and the popularity and skill of Miss Browne further increased interest in such an affair.

Then there was Mr. Pyle himself—the most talked-of figure in the sporting world, because of his adroit handling of Red Grange of football fame.

But Novelty Has Worn Off

Now America—or a large part of it—has seen Suzanne.

It has glimpsed Richards playing tennis as he did in the Davis cup matches and other big events; has watched the valiant efforts of Miss Browne to defeat the French maid.

Fans have seen Mr. Pyle—and have watched him "get away with it".

The novelty has worn off.

Another tour would net Miss Lenglen and party a fair return. But the big money has been cleaned up.

Girl May Die As Result Of Shooting In Scranton Home

Pretty Young Girl Fights For Life In Hospital, Shot Three Times

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Pretty-19-year-old Stella Graboski, who was shot three times yesterday, when her father Alexander Graboski, shot and killed his 18-year old son, Alexander, Jr., and wounded his wife, Victoria, 47, was near death in the State hospital here today.

Physicians said that they did not believe she could live through the day.

The mother also is in a critical condition with three bullet wounds in her body.

Graboski, who surrendered at the county jail here after the shooting, laughed today as he went over the story of the shooting in the Graboski nome in Dickson City, a suburb. He blamed the nagging of his wife for the tragedy.

Police said they have found that Graboski has been arrested before and that he has been known as a disturber, who frequently made life miserable for his wife and family.

"The electric chair doesn't scare me and the sooner I go the better," Graboski declared, according to officers.

Ballot Boxes Being Shipped To Washington

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 8. — A steady stream of ballot boxes, many of them battered and minus their official seals, poured into a central receiving point as officials of the United States senate supervised the collection here today of votes cast in the last general election in Allegheny county. As fast as the ballot boxes were turned over to Deputy Sergeant-At-Arms John J. McGrain the senate's official seal was placed upon them for delivery to Washington.

Several of the ballot boxes brought to the collection point were obviously of elections prior to the one contested by William B. Wilson, officials said, and several battered boxes were refused by the officials. The senate officers plan to take the shipment to Washington by truck, it was believed.

Architects To Compete On New Big Memorial

(International News Service)

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Feb. 8. —The Royal Institute of British Architects has prepared a site plan and specifications for the new Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, to be erected at Stratford-on-Avon in place of the theatre burnt last March.

The plan and specifications will form the basis of a competition open to American as well as British architects.

Re-building of the theatre is to be combined with a Stratford-on-Avon town-planning scheme. By this an unsightly block of buildings between Bank Croft Gardens and the approach to Clopton Bridge will be swept away.

It will also provide approaches to a new bridge which will span the Avon at this point, diverging from the historical fifteenth-century Clopton Bridge — which Shakespeare crossed so often—and preserving it intact for the delight of future generations.

The estimated cost of the new theatre is $500,000. Towards this the governors have $250,000 and are appealing to the public for the rest.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Heddon Heights

By Joella Johnson

"HEDDON HEIGHTS," bawled the conductor, and his monstrous, Cyranic nose pointed directly at Gladys Rose, who sat perched on the very edge of the red plush seat. "Heddon Heights," he called again, for good measure, and set the girl's heart fluttering.

The train came to a stop with a sudden jamming and shrieking of brakes. (When, thought the engineer, had he ever stopped at Heddon Heights before? He generally took it at sixty, in a mad rush to reach Millsville on time.) Every trainman dismounted and looked curiously about him, before consulting his watch. Every passenger stared sharply out his window as Gladys Rose descended. The train picked up speed and fled around a green curve.

Gladys Rose sat down upon the clean stone platform to get her breath before starting on. Flag stations were fun, but there was always the uncertainty of whether the conductor would remember to stop, which left one a little breathless. She opened her square vanity box. There was a sandwich, in a waxy wrapper, a bar of milk chocolate, a modest compact of powder, a white handkerchief, and a very small amount of money. Most of Gladys Rose's earnings went to Maine as blue money orders "to help out at home."

A shy smile crept over her lips, the only outward indication that the adventure thrilled her. Her eyes consumed hungrily each charming bit of her surroundings. The dense growth of backmatack, spruce, giant oak and slender white birch was dearly familiar to her, a replica of home scenes.

The sun, mid-way in the blue heavens, reminded her that she must be on her way, if she planned to walk to Millsville and take the train back from there. Glorious adventures, limited only by the reaches of her imagination, lay in wait on the white ribbon of road beyond that rolled its way westward.

Gladys Rose stood up and smoothed her skirts, scanning her entire costume. She knew that everything was correct and in good taste, for, with exception of the one-strap pumps of soft brown, every article she wore was a cast-off gratuity of the wealthy ladies of the St. Gerald Hotel. Gladys Rose was an elevator girl in that palatial hostelry, and this was one of her "every third Sundays" off.

A raggy path, overgrown with sumach and elderberry, led from the station to a sidewalkless road that unfurled a fresh vista of green at every curve. Her heart sang exultant praise within her. Words drifted through her mind and formed in pleasant fashion into a concrete thought:

"The sky, a stretch of lovely blue,
A breath of air so heavenly sweet
It laden seems with nature's tears,
Her fragrant, earthly offering."

And suddenly, around the clipped privet hedge that bounded a vast estate, came Adventure. Gladys Rose didn't realize it at first. She saw only a gray-haired, elderly gentleman wringing his hands in distress and weeping very real tears of wrath or grief (Gladys Rose couldn't tell which). As he came nearer, she recognized him as one of the regular Winter guests at the St. Gerald, whom she had piloted from floor to floor seven Winters.

"Why, Colonel Heddon," she called impulsively for the blinding tears would have carried him beyond her, unseeing. "Colonel Heddon, what is the matter? Can I help you?"

The little old gentleman stopped short in his tracks and gazed into Gladys Rose's sympathetic face. He clung to her outstretched hands.

"I can't remember your name," he said apologetically. "Your face is as familiar as my own, but your name . . ."

"I'm Gladys Rose Farwell," the girl said simply. "Of the St. Gerald. Don't you remember me now?" (It never occurred to her that the colonel would not have recognized the little elevator operator in the cast-off finery she wore.

The colonel clapped his hands together. "I remember you prfectly, Miss Farwell," he said, and then, pensively. "Gladys Rose . . . how your mother must have loved you to call you Gladys Rose."

She nodded. "I was the first. Afterward . . . Ida and Jane and Billy and Joe."

"The novelty had worn off. I see. Gladys Rose, I have been terribly hurt and humiliated today. As you probably know, I never married. In fact, until this year, my inventions took up all my affections. Today I was to have been married, and the beautiful, heartless vampire has humiliated me by running off with my scamp of a nephew this very morning. I am chagrined. In two hours my friends will have gathered here for the ceremony. I . . . I had rather die than admit that after 60 years I have been made out to be a nit-wit by a beautiful woman."

Tears blurred his eyes.

Gladys Rose, greatly moved at his distress, patted his hand sympathetically.

"You are well rid of her," she counselled gravely. "Any woman who would run away with a young scamp when she had the love of a splendid brilliant gentleman like you, isn't worth a thought."

"You wouldn't have done it?"

"I? I would have been the proudest girl in the world to marry you," Gladys Rose assured him, honestly.

"Would you, now? Gladys Rose, to save me from this unbearable humiliation, would you consent to marry me this afternoon? Understand, it would entail no obligations on your part. You could go directly back to your hotel after the ceremony." Gladys felt herself wavering weakly in sheer pity.

"But—I haven't any clothes," she protested.

"You are charming, as you are," the colonel said gallantly.

So this third Sunday off became a blurred adventure of unreality. On Monday, piloting the guests of the St. Gerald from floor to floor, she convinced herself that she had dreamed it all; the lovely estate at Heddon Heights; the assembled guests, and her marriage to the colonel. Yet, in her square vanity box, on the servants' floor of the hotel, was the money that would have been spent for her ticket from Millsville back to the city, if she had not come in the colonel's automobile.

If Gladys Rose had been sufficiently conversant with conventions she might have found, in the morning papers, a microscopic announcement of Colonel Heddon's marriage to Miss Gladys Rose Farwell of Hotel St. Gerald.

At noon, carrying the manager and another gentleman to the 12th floor, her ears caught a protest from the manager.

"But I tell you, Carbonet, I've searched the entire records, and there is no Miss Farwell a guest here. You can look them over yourself."

"But, man alive," declared the other, "I've just got to find her. We presumed they went off on a honeymoon together, but the chauffeur says he took the bride to this hotel and the colonel remained at Heddon. His sudden death this morning, and the vast estate he has left, make it absolutely imperative that I find Mrs. Heddon immediately. His will left everything to his 'dearly beloved wife.'"

Gladys Rose gasped and reversed the lever. The car shot down from the 12th floor, quite out of control. Money . . . loads of it . . . oh, what she couldn't do now for Ida and Janie and Joe! The manager and his companion stared, white-faced, at each other. In a moment more, Gladys Rose had come to her senses and brought the car to a graceful stop at the main floor.

"See here," stuttered the manager. "If you do that once more you'll get fired."

"I'm firing myself," said Gladys Rose. "Now. This minute." She opened the door and turned with grave dignity to the lawyer. "You was looking for Mrs. Heddon? Well, I'm her."

The Silent Figure

By Monte Darrell

ALL the way up the trail, Allan MacCrae had looked for a curl of smoke in the direction of the clearing. As yet, he had seen none.

Louis, he reflected, ought to be getting supper, Louis knew he'd be hungry after his long ride. He knew about what time to expect him in. Even if he hadn't made the fire, he ought to be chopping his kindling for it. If he was, the sound should carry down to him.

Two days ago, when MacCrae stood ready to start for the city, he had said, as he often did:

"Louis, you ought to go with me. Tain't safe to keep your finds hid around the shack any longer. Folks is wise here, that we're strikin' it rich. You've been fool enough to tell some of 'em that you don't trust the bank. Any jackass could guess you was hoardin' your pickin's here. You talk too much, Louis far, far too much fer a wise man. You come along with me today, Louis. I've got a hunch you oughter."

Louis had shaken his head and laughed. But his voice held a stubborn ring as he replied: "You're full o' hunches, you are! I won't go. Ain't I told you that 50 times or more—not until I've made all I want to make? Then I'm going and never coming back. I'm goin' straight to—her."

"Oh," retorted MacCrae. "Her—"

"There'll be a letter for me in town. Get it for me, will you, old man? I'm setting great store on getting that letter—"

"Oh, I'll bring it up," promised MacCrae, sourly. "I'll bring it up for you. But, mind—I got a hunch you'll be a dead man when I get back."

Louis had laughed again. "You and your hunches!" he had cried. "Well—so long! Don't forget the letter."

Had his "hunch" at last become a reality? He leaped from his horse, and ran to the cabin and went in through the door.

The room was in the greatest confusion. Allan MacCrae knew the significance of the disorder.

"Louis!" he cried, "Louis! Are you here? Answer!"

He found him, still breathing, in the corner—like a wounded animal, nursing his hurts in the dark.

"Oh, boy!" sobbed Allan MacCrae. "Oh, boy! I've always been afraid of this."

"It's all gone," whispered Louis' fluttering voice. "The gold—all gone! You hadn't been away two hours when they came. Some of the river gang. I've been holding out for you to come—with the letter."

"The letter! Oh, yes—the letter!" Allan MacCrae's voice trembled. "I'll—find—it and read it to you—"

"Hurry! What does she say?"

"I'll find it," Allan MacCrae said again. "I'll find it—" He fumbled in his pockets with hands that shook as with a palsy.

"I've been hanging on just for the letter—"

"Yes, yes, boy! Here it is. Wait'll I open it—"

Then, with parched lips, he read: "I will wait for you until the end of my days, for I love you—"

"I knew she'd write! I was bound to wait for it—"

Allan MacCrae sat for a long time beside the still body, almost as motionless.

"Oh, Lord," he prayed at last, "I hope I did right! I meant right and I had to do something quick. I couldn't tell him when he set such store by it—I couldn't tell him I forgot the letter—that I never thought of it again until he asked me to read it to him! an' he was dyin'—I had to do something. Lord, and I meant right! I'll have to ask you to look at it that way."

He turned the bit of paper that he still held in his hand over and over.

"Both sides are blank," he said. "White and blank. Yet, I seemed to see what I read in black and white. I must have, for I ain't a man to be able ter use soft words like I used then, so glib. You must ha' meant fer me to do it. Lord, or I wouldn't a knew how!"

He tore the paper into tiny pieces and scattered them on the cabin floor. An errant breeze, dancing through the door, caught them up and whirled them merrily about, like snow-flakes.

Allan MacCrae still sat by the silent figure, almost as motionless, with his head in his hands.

"Jack, dear, I made you believe I wasn't in earnest when I told you I didn't mean what I said, didn't I?"

"I believe so."

"Well—I take it all back."

An Interesting Woman

By Hazel Courtney

"MA-ARGIE!"

Margaret Reynolds rushed to the window and looked out. "You old peach!" she exclaimed at sight of Cora Lee, "to come over so soon! Come in!" They met in the hall and embraced enthusiastically.

"I could hardly wait to see you, Cora," cried Margie, excitedly.

"I came over immediately I heard you'd come," returned Cora. "You've been away a long time—at least three months seems long to me. You look great," she continued, regarding her chum fondly.

"Feel great," answered Margie. "What about you?"

Cora stifled a yawn. "All in," she confessed. "This town's traveling some the past six weeks, and last night we finished up with a wedding."

"A wedding!" exclaimed Margie. "Whose?"

"Sadie Caswell's," laconically.

"Sadie Caswell! Who on earth did she marry?"

"Didn't you get my letter?"

"None about Sadie Caswell."

Cora yawned again. "Well, I sent a long one, two-three days ago, telling you all about it. Must have got lost. Maybe I couldn't see straight enough to write the address legibly. Gosh! I'm tired." She moved toward the stairs. "Let's go up to your room and I'll tell you the whole long story."

Margie waited impatiently, while Cora made herself comfortable. "For heaven's sake, begin!" she cried at last. "I'm dying of curiosity!"

Cora began. "This came from Sadie's own lips, so it's true enough. She said she had to tell someone about it, and she chose me because I've always been a little kinder than the other girls, and she felt sort of friendly toward me."

"None of us were ever unkind to her intentionally," defended Margie, with spirit.

"O, she knew that," answered Cora, "only we just left her out of things because she wasn't popular."

"I guess we did," admitted Margie. "She was so plain, and she didn't have an attractive personality to offset it. None of the boys took to her, and it was hard to fit her in."

"She realized all that," Cora said, "And she was so sensitive she couldn't just ignore her plainness and develop charm instead. I imagine she was pretty unhappy," she ended thoughtfully.

"But the story!" reminded Margie.

"O, yes! Well, she had an invitation to spend two weeks in Boston with an aunt. While there, they went to a lecture on Beauty Culture and the Art of Distinctive Dress, or something like that, and Sadie was much impressed. She made up her mind to visit the studio where this woman expert did her stuff, and find out whether her case was hopeless or not. Well," Cora paused dramatically. "It seems she is a 'type'."

"A 'type'!" Margie gurgled.

"Don't laugh! She came back a raving, tearing beauty!"

"No!" Margie was incredulous.

"Yes!" Cora was positive. "The woman cut her hair and combed it back from her face with a sort of bang arrangement on one side of her forehead and a loosely waved lock drooping carelessly over the other. She had learned about the proper rouge, powder, and lipstick—and clothes!" Cora looked impressive. "You should have seen her clothes! You know she always went in for those girly-girly things that made her look about 14 and gangly and ridiculous?" Margie nodded. "Well, she learned different. Her new dresses were quite dark and severe but the colors and materials were rich, and they certainly looked wonderful on her.

"Honestly, no one recognized her at first when she came back. The consciousness of her good looks had changed her whole personality."

"Sounds like one of those ads where the girl mails a coupon and the very next week she receives a beautiful catalogue, fully illustrated, showing how she can dress and be what she—"

"Let me tell you what she did to the boys! They all fell hard, you may be sure. No wonder, Sadie certainly looked like—uh—" she hesitated.

"A vamp?" supplied Margie.

"No-o, nothing so crude," said Cora. "I guess more like what they describe as 'interesting.' What's more and besides, the beauty expert had said her 'type name' should be Sada, and Sada she insisted upon being called—and was!"

"All the boys rushed her, but the unattainable Vic Nugent led the crowd, and he was at her beck and call every minute. She made him hop around, too."

"Imagine marrying a Greek god like Vic," sighed Margie.

"She didn't marry him."

"Then, who—?"

"Jim Crossley," answered Cora, simply.

Margie fell back weakly. "My lord! tell me more!"

"It seems Jim used to drop in once in a blue moon, when she was plain Sadie. He never said much—you know how bashful and slow he is—but he kept calling, and buying her candy once in a while, and I guess he took her riding once or twice—but that was all.

"When she came home, and the crowd rushed her, Jim dropped out. She got to be quite the rage and everybody gave parties and dances for her and she was on the go all day, every day. But she missed Jim. At last she made him take her riding one night and goaded him into proposing. It developed that Jim didn't care much for Sada. Sadie, he had admired and loved as a genuine woman, a potential wife, but Sada was too ornamental, too hard to live up to.

"So Sadie concluded he realized her real worth and was not smitten with the false shell, so to speak, that she had acquired with the fancy name. She wasn't keen on living up to Sada either, it was quite a strain.

"They got married last night," she concluded, "and are having a honeymoon at Niagara. When they come home, it will be to one of those doll-house bungalows on River street."

Margie laughed. "And thus passes Sada, an interesting woman."

"Some stars are so far away that the light from them hasn't reached us yet. But it will arrive eventually."

"Reminds me of my hired man coming from the postoffice," commented Farmer Heck.

Treasure Chests

By Margaret Taylor

"WELL, I can tell you there's no cheap flat good enough for Mr. Billings. They've taken one of those new apartments right on Broad street, and Houston's interior decorator is going to fix it all up." Mrs. Wills was telling Margery Randall and her father about her daughter Peg's approaching marriage.

"Yes, and Peg's got the right idea, to get things before marriage, because a man may promise a lot of things, but he forgets all about them afterwards. But my Peg ain't going out empty-handed, either. Believe me, she has more beautiful things than many a girl who puts on airs." She directed a meaning look towards Marge.

"She's got a beautiful chest full of the most wonderful linens and a trunk with plain towels and things for everyday use, besides quilts and lampshades that she made; and kitchen stuff that she bought every time she went to town. I told her that marriage is bad enough when you have something to start on, but when one tries to live on love and cold potatoes, well, you know what happens.

"Marge, I suppose you have all your things ready, too, but then, it's different when you marry a farmer. Almost anything is good enough for a farm; even if Bill is the farmer and you are a school teacher."

When Mrs. Wills had gone, Tom Randall gazed with misery in his eyes at his little girl as she bent over her chest, looking at her belongings with a serious, thoughtful expression such as he had never seen before. He was wretched because his long illness and his inability to earn money had prevented Marge from having all the beautiful things she could desire.

"I'm a miserable failure," he thought bitterly, "but if I can only keep her the fine woman she is, and make her see that's what really counts, I won't be a total loss, Marge," he called to her softly, "Marge, do you wish you were going to be Mrs. Billings instead of Mrs. Masters?"

"That old fool," retorted Marge. "But, Dad"—Marge slipped into his arms—"do you think we had better wait until I do get some nice things for my wedding chest? I don't think it's quite right to go to Bill empty-handed, as Mrs. Wills said."

"Darling, you talk it over with Bill. But remember this, dear child; I have watched you grow, and have tried to make you what your Mother was. I think you have something more valuable than Peg's chest of linens. You are the real treasure chest, and Bill has found it out before now, I'm sure."

That evening, when Bill and Marge were in the orchard, she told him of Mrs. Wills' and Billings' preparations for the wedding. Bill was as disturbed as Marge had been.

"Marge, darling, I've an awful nerve asking you to marry me. I've nothing but a farm plastered with all the mortgages that a movie thriller has, and nothing but broken-down shacks for out-buildings. Of course, I know I'll make good, but it's going to be hard sledding for a while, and you'll be comparing our way of living with all your friends' who are marrying these smart city fellows. Marge, if you want to, we'll postpone it." He ended up miserably.

"You know, Bill, somehow I think maybe it would be wiser."

"Oh."

She didn't dare to look at him, for she knew she had hurt him to the quick.

"Of course you have a right to change your mind," he said a little stiffly, "but you did know the state of affairs before now."

"Sweetheart, don't misunderstand. I'm not thinking of your farm. I mean my own part of the bargain. Listen, dear. You know you couldn't understand why I covered that old cracker box with cretonne and put my things in there when I had plenty of room in the cedar chest. Well, this is the reason."

With Bill's arms about her, and soothed by the heavy fragrance of the apple blossoms and the distant call of the whip-poor-will, Marge explained.

"Ever since I can remember, I had always planned that when I would meet, be wooed and wed by my hero, I would have chests and chests of beautiful linens of all kinds: fine Irish, coarse Florentine and dainty Madeiras. Oh, I would have a collection that would be the envy of many far richer than I, and my husband would find them worthy of his love for me."

"Silly child," whispered Bill, who was hardly listening, but wished that her story might go on forever so that he might hold her close by his side.

"Then," continued Marge, "I realized that even one chest of linens was much more than any poor schoolma'am could afford, so I decided that 'quality and not quantity' would be my slogan, but, darling, I have exactly three pieces that I'm proud of: the lovely tea cloth that Aunt Betty gave me; the tablecloth which I bought and that embroidered towel that belonged to poor, dear mother. Well, of course, no one can start housekeeping on three pieces of linen, so I put the other things that were necessary, but not worthy of that beautiful chest, in the cretonne box. Darling, I think you ought to have linen—real linen."

"But, Marge, I wouldn't know linen if I saw it. And, hang it all, what do I care about the old chest full of stuff, anyway? Won't the stores be open after we're married?"

"But we'll never be able to afford it. It'll be an extravagance, then."

"Then we'll keep on hoping and working until we can afford it. I'm not going to be a poor farmer all my life—not with you to help me. Sweetheart, if you'll take a chance on my run-down farm, I'll be satisfied with the cretonne box, because you're the treasure I'm looking for and not an old cedar chest of linens."

They sat long and silent that evening under the fragrant apple blossoms.

"Can you give my boy a position in your office?"

"Y-e-s. What can he do?"

"What can he do? If he could do anything I would use him in my own business, of course."

"So you ran across Betty. When I saw her last she was quite a little girl—short skirts and all legs, you know."

"Well, the only change is in her size."

Lost and Found

By Claire Wesson

NAN RUGGLES, spending the Summer at her uncle's camp, looked lazily out at the pine trees from the sleeping porch where she lay.

A cool breeze was blowing, and she could hear the water lapping on the rocky shore of the lake. Larry Manners, next door, was playing his mandolin dreamily and somewhat, Nan thought, absent-mindedly.

She always wondered what he was thinking about when he played like that. Larry could be counted upon to be thinking something interesting at any given moment, Larry, with his queer ideas, his provoking moodiness, but with a look of romance in his eye and an infrequent smile that made up for everything when one saw the look and received the smile. Nan did.

It was such a nice, lazy kind of afternoon that Nan wished that she had not promised herself that she would work. But she had, so she sat up on the bed, yawned, stretched her brown arms and said, almost aloud: "Oh, bother! Typing on a day like this!"

She gave a last longing look at the sky, shining blue above tall straight pines, and the lake, dark blue, the way she especially loved it, with icy little whitecaps. Soon her typewriter clicked a bustling little staccato to Larry's music. Nan did publicity work; everything she wrote helped, and she needed the money.

When she had worked for nearly an hour, she put in a clean sheet of paper and began a letter to the girl with whom she shared a studio in Boston. "There's nobody in the world like Bab, Nan would say, and consider that she had given a complete description of her friend.

"Bab, dear," the letter began, "I am in love. Of course you would guess it. But I am not just in love with Larry Manners, I love him so much that it hurts. And he doesn't care a bit about me, except that he likes to argue with me and beat me at tennis. I'm always wanting something I can't have, but this is the worst yet—"

Her paper caught in the roller and Nan took it out to see what was the matter.

"Nan! Oh, Nan! Come for a swim."

There was Larry under the trees in his bathing suit. It may have been five minutes, but was probably only four, before Nan was in her bathing suit. She ran down and joined Larry and they swam out to the raft. This was a wobbly affair that the boys next door had made; it tipped over when one climbed on it, and when one sat on it, one was in the water up to the waist, but this did not bother Nan and Larry. They sat there and talked until the waves began to dash over them. Then Larry said:

"Gee, Nan, I'm thoughtless. You'll be getting cold. When I get talking I forget everything. Come on—beat you in."

"Yes," thought Nan, swimming in to shore with the crawl stroke Larry had taught her, "that's just it. Everything is mental with Larry. I'm just someone to talk to."

As they climbed up on the dock and walked up to the camp, a stiff wind was blowing and Nan shivered. But she noticed that the magazines had blown about the porch and she stopped to pick them up. With them she found a piece of the copy she had been working on.

"This must have blown away from my work-shop," she explained, smiling, and ran into the house to dress.

Larry walked away slowly, thinking of the picture she made in her red bathing suit, her short black hair blown about by the wind.

On the path through the wounds, leading to the Manners camp, he stooped and picked up another piece of paper.

"The wind is certainly blowing things about," he thought glancing casually at the paper.

By evening the wind had died down and myriads of stars shone over the lake. The Winthrops' new log cabin was furnished and they were having a big house-warming. Larry stopped to take Nan over in the canoe. Nan had told her uncle to tell Larry that she had a headache and couldn't go, Larry, surprised and disappointed, took the canoe back and reluctantly went to the party alone.

"How quiet Larry is," everyone said. They all missed Nan, too.

As the jazz from the phonograph on the Winthrop porch floated over to her through the trees, Nan, who really did have a headache, was prowling with her flash-light under the pine trees. She had looked everywhere for the letter to Bab, and couldn't find it, and had decided that the wind had carried it off. But who had found it?

More and more worried and annoyed, she gave up the search and went to bed.

She dozed fitfully, then, toward morning, fell into a heavy sleep. When she awoke, her first thought was of the letter. Her cheeks burned as she dressed hurriedly. She was too nervous to think, but Nan had one comforter for all her troubles—her flivver. Whenever anything went wrong—and Nan's life had never been easy—Nan went off in the little car and thought things out. She had bought it with the scant sum her father had left her, and it had been a more faithful friend than her father had ever been. Now as she started the engine, all she could think of was Larry.

What fun they had when she taught him to run the flivver—Larry, who had a new big car every year! And now she had spoiled everything through her carelessness.

Too miserable to care where she was going, Nan drove on. Finally she stopped by old Tumble Brook, and threw herself down in the tall grass. Here, an hour later, Larry found her.

As they tore the letter into little pieces (Nan insisted), and watched them float down the stream, Larry said:

"Gee, Nan, I've been crazy about you all Summer, but if I hadn't seen that letter, I might never have gotten up the nerve—"

The idea was too awful for further consideration.

"But you guaranteed this watch would last me a lifetime."

"Certainly, but you looked pretty sick the day you bought it."

PETERS ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Florence Smith Vincent

TWO KINDS OF LUCK

There is many a true word spoken in jest, and Pat was wise when he declared that what makes all the difference in the world whether a thing is right or wrong is who does it!

"You're a wise Dog, Pat, dear!" cried the little Girl. "Rabbits or fish—they both have feelings, and it's a shame to"—

"Whoopee!"

It was such a gay, gladsome call that whatever the little Girl had been going to say she didn't. Instead, she jumped to her feet, and, Pat at her heels, raced to meet Peter, who was striding back along the bank, waving his cap at them.

"Luck at last!" cried Peter, when at last he reached them. "About time, too! A speckled trout! A beauty! I might have gone further and caught more, but I hurried back to show this fellow to you!"

Over Peter's shoulder dangled the line, and on the end of the line dangled a small fish, a beautiful fish, whose smooth coat was tinted in all the colors of the rainbow, and whose scales shone like silver in the sunlight. And as Peter held him up for Pat and the little Girl to see, the small fish wriggled.

"Oh, shame!" cried the little Girl. "The poor little thing suffers, Peter. The sharp, cruel hook is cutting his mouth. Take it out at once, and carefully!"

Peter stared in surprise. The little Girl, usually so gentle, was angry and her voice was sharp.

"Unhook that fish, I say!" Pat smothered a doggie chuckle 'way down in his throat, but Peter after a second look at the little Girl, did exactly as he was told.

"Water, water!" gasped the fish,

"OH, SHAME!" CRIED THE LITTLE GIRL; "THE POOR LITTLE THING SUFFERS, PETER

writhing on the ground. And Peter, who had walked and talked and made friends with all the creatures of the Green Field and Forest, and should have known that the water people were folks, too—but, you see, such a thought had never occurred to him—was so amazed at hearing the little fish speak that he couldn't do a thing except roll his eyes and stutter:

"W-w-why, w-w-who"—

But the little Girl kept her senses better. Snatching Peter's cap from his limp hand, she ran down to the brookside, dipped it in the water and poured the refreshing drops over the fainting fish.

OVERLANDS TRIM MAHONING; REMAIN UNDEFEATED

Three Straight For Overlands

Overlands Defeat Mahoning Team, 40 To 29, In City League

PENNSY TOSERS DOWN P. & O., 28-21

By "BUGS" WALTHER

By virtue of their 40 to 29 defeat of the Mahoning A. A. on Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. the Rick-Overland tossers gained a firmer foot-hold on the top rung of the City Industrial loop. In the second game of the program the P. R. R. team downed the P. & O. Electrics by a score of 28 to 21.

It was the third straight victory of the second half for the Overlands and it is going to take a mighty fine team to down the fast steppers. From all indications the Overlands will have easy sailing in their fight for the league title in the second half of the season.

The Overlands shot into an early lead and retained an advantage throughout the game. At the end of the first half the score stood 21 to 11 with the Overlands in the van. It was through the fine work of Uhle and Cuba that the Overlands remained in the race throughout the first and second periods.

In the third and fourth quarters Cuba and Nocera ran wild and scored a total of seven baskets between them to give the Overlands fourteen more points. Blythe and Klaber scored consistently for the Mahoning team in the two final sessions.

Pennsy Team Wins

The P. R. R. quintet under the leadership of "Jewie" Coen had a rather difficult time in downing the P. & O. Electrics in the second game of the evening. The final score was 28 to 21.

The Electrics with Buckingham leading the way shot into an early lead and held their advantage throughout the first two quarters. The score at half time favored the Electrics 11 to 5.

The Pennsy passers with Coen and William Kroen doing the bulk of the scoring gained the lead soon after the start of the third period and held their lead for the remainder of the game. The Electrics could not get started in the fourth quarter and fell by the wayside.

Steen May Lead New Castle Club

Official Announcement Has Not Yet Been Made By Directors

BASEBALL FLAYERS YEARN FOR ACTION

By ED FRITZ

Although no official announcement has been made by the board of directors, New Castle O. & P. Club, it is indicated that Bill Steen will again direct the destinies of the local club this season.

Steen took over the duties of Bill Thompson late in 1926 and while the team did not make any appreciable strides this could not be blamed on Steen who was crippled by lack of reliable hurlers and infielders.

The local club is angling for several hurlers and expects to strengthen the infield.

Mid-Winter Dance

Wednesday night at King Humbert hall, the Independent Athletic Association, which hopes to back a team in the Lawrence County League, if given a franchise, and who will also play in a Youngstown league, will hold a benefit dance. Steve Griffith and his Penn Castle orchestra will furnish the dance music. It is expected to be attended by the fans and their girl friends.

Paul And Joe Anxious

Paul McCullough, local pitcher, is anxious for the time to come when he can get back in training. Paul pitched for Toledo last season. Joe Hartman will hurl for Johnstown in the Middle-Atlantic while Paul Fahey, one of the best first basemen the Lawrence County League has had is trying to land a berth with a Cleveland team.

Peerless Quint Trims Croton

The Peerless quintet of the Independent Athletic association added another victim to their string of victories on Monday night at the Lincoln-Garfield gym floor by downing the Croton M. E. team by a score of 43 to 14.

The Peerless tossers gained an early lead and held the advantage at all times. At the end of the first half the Peerless team held a lead of 22 to 2. West caged the field goal that saved his team from a white-washing in the first two periods.

Carmen Marino with eight field goals was the star of the game, with Benny Marino running a close second with four baskets. For the losers the work of McClelland and Benninghoff was the best, West and Kneram played a flashy game also.

The lineup and summary:

Peerless—43.		Croton—14
B. Marino	F	Kneram
C. Marino	F	West
Honkonen	C	McClelland
Fernati	G	Kerr
Mash	G	Grimes

There are several basketball players who are blessed with hands large enough to perform the feat of holding a basketball as Elvin Butcher, University of Tennessee star, is above. But that isn't Butcher's main claim to fame. He knows how to toss the ball, too, apparently. He scored 104 of the 237 points his team registered in its first 10 games.

Out Of The Way For This Lad: He's Headed For Amsterdam

By NORMAN E. BROWN

This earnest looking lad above is headed for the 1928 games at Amsterdam, Holland. Of course, he doesn't plan to run all the way there, but he hopes to win a place on the American team—and the boat that carries it—by showing the coming year on the cinder path.

He is Arnold Gillette, distance running star of the University of Montana.

Gillette is holder of the national I. A. A. title in the two-mile run, winning the championship at the Intercollegiate meet at Chicago last summer. He ran both distances there and in the Pacific Coast Conference meet in fast time. He set records in both events and the Paolo Alto meet last spring.

He is not a newcomer by any means. Ten years of consistent training during his school days have brought him to his present plane.

American League May Not Elect New Leader Until Season Of 1928

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'l News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Quite contrary to general belief the American league will not throw Ban Johnson overboard for a younger and more tractable successor unless Johnson forces the league's hand by attempting to reclaim his former position of power. The organization in any case probably will remain as it is, for the season of 1927 with Frank Navin of Detroit, tacitly conducting its affairs as acting president and William Harridge, Johnson's secretary, looking after the detail of the office.

The writer was informed today by a man high in baseball's counsels that the league far from rushing into the light of day with Johnson's successor at its schedule meeting today as had been rumored would take no action at this or any date in the immediate future out of consideration for Johnson's health. It is understood that an ouster at this stage of the proceedings might very well prove fatal to Johnson.

No Hurry.

"Comiskey, Landis and other men who had been opposed to Johnson, recognize this humane necessity" it was pointed out. "There is absolutely no hurry on our part to put another man in Johnson's place. Navin as vice president, was elected for just such an emergency as this. Johnson's secretary, William Harridge, is a capable man who is qualified to conduct the detail affairs of Johnson's office in his absence.

"It has been said that we can't start the season the way we are. Why not? If we are satisfied, everyone else ought to be. Today will be our last get-together before the start of the season, yet nothing has been done about appointing a successor to Johnson. Why? Because we don't want to make it any tougher for Ban than we have to."

Informally, however several men have been discussed, it was admitted. One of them is E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club. Barnard as representative of the Dunn interests virtually is foot loose and fancy free but they say he is not the type of man they want.

They want a man with a big name, a man whose prestige would carry significance anywhere. Barnard otherwise, is fool proof, they admit; a solid, logical thinker and an excellent executive.

College Gym Is Being Packed

Victorious Westminster Team Is Drawing Record Crowds

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Everyone likes a winner. For this reason, the Westminster College quintet of the present season is receiving unparalleled support. Not that the student body has not always backed the cage teams to the limit even though their record was nothing to be bragged about, but basketball fans of the district, and especially of the immediate vicinity of New Wilmington, have warmed up to the team and are watching its every move with keen interest.

Merchants of the town have chartered a special bus to convey them to Meadville Tuesday evening where Westminster will meet Allegheny. In addition to the bus load, numerous towns-folk will motor to the up-state institution in hopes of witnessing a real basketball game.

In regards to support on the home floor, the crowds have been larger than at any time since the gym was built. Last Saturday evening, the auditorium was filled, although St. Francis, a Non-Conference foe, was met. New Wilmington merchants have reserved an entire block of seats and at each game, their cheering rivals that of the students.

Westminster plays Waynesburg, at Waynesburg, Thursday evening and Friday evening, plays Duquesne at Pittsburgh. The next home appearance will come February 19 when Waynesburg appears here. This contest is expected to crowd Westminster's gym to the doors.

League Moguls To Ratify Schedules

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Ratification of their 1927 schedules was the only business due to come before the separate meetings of the American and National leagues today. There will be no joint meeting at this time, Judge Landis said and added that his program for the elimination of betting by ball players and his statute of limitations on offenses committed more than five years ago probably will not be considered until after the impending season. The question of the new draft regulation also would come up at that time he said.

P. & O. Athletic Teams Have Fine Card This Week

With only six weeks left in the Penn-Ohio Electric league for the winter sports of basketball and bowling, the contests are taking on a decidedly interesting form. All the teams of the P.-O. have been going good, the rivalry is keen and the scores in recent weeks have been close enough to keep interest alive throughout each match.

This week's basketball schedule calls for a double-header at the Lincoln school, Youngstown, on Wednesday, the Youngstown office meeting the Municipal Railway and Sharon playing the P-O. Coach squad. On the same evening Warren meets New Castle in New Castle.

In the bowling section the Municipal Railway plays Lowellville on Tuesday evening at Campbell. On Wednesday Sharon and New Castle meet in New Castle, on Friday the P-O. Coach and Youngstown office teams roll their games in Youngstown.

One of the most expert women skaters taking part in the competitions at St. Moritz this winter is Miss Diana Kingsmill, daughter of Rear Admiral Sir Charles Kingsmill, who was the first head of Canada's marine service.

PENN-REGENTS TO PLAY GROVE CITY

The Penn-Regents duck-pin team will clash with the Grove City bowlers here on Friday night in what should prove to be one of the best duck-pin matches of the season.

The Penn-Regents will have the following team: Freeman, Ackworth, Stimple, Jackson, Hemphill and Davis.

New Castle High To Play Tech Freshmen Here This Evening

New Castle High's crack floor team will play the Carnegie Tech Freshmen quintet at the Senior High tonight. A preliminary game has been arranged for 7:15 o'clock, with the main attraction following immediately.

The Red and Black passers have hit a winning stride that has carried them through six straight victories and they hope to keep up the good work against the collegians.

The Tech Freshmen will have two New Castle boys in their lineup tonight, Andrew Hartman, former Red and Black captain at a forward, and Thomas Connelly at a guard post. Both Hartman and Connelly are well known here and it is expected that a large following of friends will be on hand tonight to watch them romp under college colors.

Coach Bridenbaugh put the locals through a stiff workout on Monday afternoon and feels confident that they will be in fine condition for the game tonight. Just what kind of a lineup will be used for the game tonight could not be determined today. With three of their forwards out of service including Neyman, Franklin and Johnson, Coach Bridenbaugh faces a task in selecting a suitable man for the forward berth opposite Paul Reider.

It is altogether likely that Arthur Silliman, former Ben Franklin High star will draw the guard assignment left vacant by the graduation of Klaber. Siliman and Ostrosky have played together at Franklin High and for that reason it is thought that the coach will utilize the former Junior High youth. McGrath at center will complete the lineup.

The Tech Freshies have had a rather successful season to date and they are figuring on tripping the fast traveling Red and Black machine. The game tonight should be one of the best of the year.

Westminster Has Chance To Cop Tri-State Title

Waynesburg defeated Duquesne University by a score of 26 to 23 on the Waynesburg floor on Monday night. It was the first conference defeat for the "Dukes." Westminster and Duquesne are now deadlocked for the leadership of the Tri-State Conference with two victories and one defeat apiece.

Westminster College is on the road to a Tri-State College floor championship today. Figures made public revealing the standing of the Conference games to date show that Westminster is in second place, topped only by Duquesne University.

Coach Lawther has worked wonders with a group of young players at the United Presbyterian school this year. With only one or two veterans on hand at the start of the season, the outlook was very discouraging to the ardent followers of the Blue and White team, but after the first few games it was quite apparent that the first guessers had made mistakes in their surmises.

According to the composite standing of all colleges in Western Pennsylvania published Sunday the Westminsterites are tied with W. & J. for second place with five victories and one defeat. In the Tri-State Conference figures the Westminster team stands second to Duquesne with two victories and one defeat.

Sport writers concede the Westminster boys the Tri-State title this year in event they can come through this week's schedule undefeated. The games on tap for this week are with Waynesburg and Duquesne, and both are to be played on foreign courts. Duquesne has not an easy row to hoe either this week, the Catholics are called on to face Waynesburg, Bethany and Westminster.

Should the "Dukes" drop their three contests and Westminster pick up their two games the Tri-State title will be securely nailed to the flag pole.

Following is the standing of the Tri-State Conference to date:

Duquesne	2	0	1.000
Westminster	2	1	.667
Geneva	3	2	.600
Waynesburg	2	2	.500
Bethany	2	3	.400
Thiel	1	4	.200

Games of Week

Wednesday—Duquesne at Bethany.

Thursday—Westminster at Waynesburg.

Friday— Westminster at Duquesne.

HALL of FAME

Nominating MARTHA NORELIUS

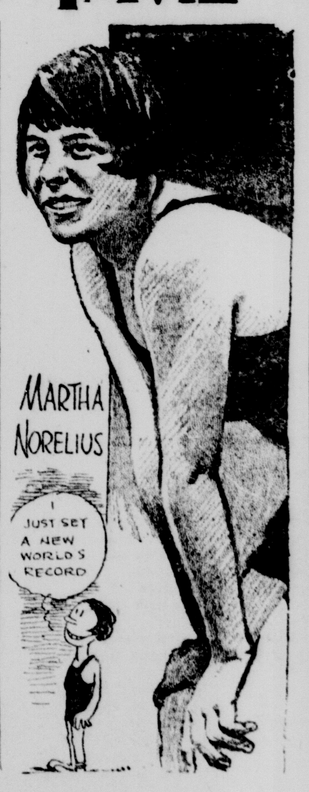

Because she is one of the greatest mermaids in the world today.

Because she holds the world's record for the 220-yard free style swim—a mark of 2:40 3-5, more than two seconds better than any other ever set.

Because she holds the international record for the 500-yard event.

Because she recently set two new world's records in a day—and two national records at the same time.

Because her two new world marks were made against the records of no less a swimmer than Gertrude Ederle—Miss Norelius' mark of 5:51 3-5 for the 440-yard event broke Miss Ederle's time of 5:53 3-5 for the 400 yards and 5:54 3-5 for the entire distance. And because Miss Norelius' willingness to swim against any competition and any handicap wins her greater popularity at every appearance.

Star Guard Out At Westminster

Blue And White Meets Allegheny Tonight With Crippled Team

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Westminster will probably be without the services of Tudor Lewis, star guard, when Allegheny is encountered in a very important tilt at Meadville, Tuesday evening. A "charley horse" of the leg, suffered as a result of a bump received in the St. Francis game, is the bugaboo of the young player. He had to be removed from the lineup Saturday night before the final whistle blew and when Lawther called his men to the floor Monday, Lewis was not in uniform. He will doubtless make the trip to Allegheny, and if at all possible, he will play part of the time. McQuiston will start in case Lewis is kept on the bench.

This week is a critical one for Westminster's cagers. They can hope for nothing but a real fight at Allegheny as the Meadvilleites received a two-point thumping here that they have not forgotten. Add to this mental state of mind the fact that Allegheny will be playing on their own court before a home crowd, and little hope for a Westminster victory survives.

No later than Thursday evening, Coach Lawther and his proteges, must prepare bag and baggage for a jaunt to Waynesburg to meet the Yellow-Jackets. This will be a tough game. Waynesburg has been going like a house afire, having defeated West Virginia University and held W. & J. to a one point victory.

The very next evening, no less worthy an opponent than the Duquesne University quintet is to be played in Pittsburgh. There is little or no hope of a Westminster victory here. Such teams as Muskingum, John Carroll, Bucknell and Waynesburg have succumbed to the Bluffites and they will be primed for the invading Blue and White.

The Pekin Gazette has been published without intermission for 1,400 years.

Wandering Golf Balls — By Feg Murray

Golf balls don't always go where they are meant to go, as any one who has played the "ancient and horrible pastime" knows very well. But the following are a few incidents, chosen at random, to show into what strange and unusual places the little pellets will stray, in a game where "anything can happen."

A Mrs. Blackford, of Indiana, was forced to climb a tree, after her approach shot landed in a nest among the branches. (No, she did not get a birdie). Bobby Jones once experienced a "sole-stirring" event when his iron shot sent the ball into an old shoe resting on a pile of trash on a wheelbarrow. Bobby socked the shoe onto the nearby green and the ball luckily fell out.

King George's drive, which bounded into the ear of a peaceful cow, has its counterparts in a shot by a Mr. M'Evoy of the Middleton Club of Cork, Ireland, which went into the ear of a donkey, and another one at Duddingston, Eng., that became embedded on the back of a sheep. Dave Shade once wrote me how he drove a golf ball about 175 yards and into a hollow tree, the sphere finally coming to rest in a spider's web about six inches off the ground. Jerry Travers, who lost a course record at Fox Hills in the semi-final round of a Metropolitan championship because his ball rolled inside a large milk bottle, can seek solace from Bryce Evans, a famous left-hander, who topped his second shot into a two-quart milk can at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass. Evans walloped that milk can eight times before the ball rolled out.

Some other curious and extraordinary resting places for golf balls that were hit in actual play are as follows:

At the Royal and Ancient medal meeting in 1907, a member's drive landed and struck on the sharp point of a hat pin in the hat of a woman crossing the course. Harry Bates, playing at the Briarcliff course, sent a mashie shot into the drinking fountain just above the eighth green. Norman Chapman sank a spanking tee shot into his caddy's hip pocket in 1925, while Aubrey Boomer, a former French champion, once 'skied" a ball so that it landed in his coat pocket! At Neasden, England, a ball went into a hollow papier mache cylinder that was used as a flag on top of the pin at one hole, while at another foreign course, a golfer sent his tee shot into a pillow slip hanging on a clothes line!

Feg Murray Says—

Don't worry, Tex, most builders of big indoor fight arenas never get any further than the sporting columns.

Your pipe can be a cheer or a chore

IT DEPENDS on what you feed it. Put it on a regular ration of Prince Albert and it will yield you pleasure, without stint or limit. "Never," you will say, "has the old pipe tasted so good." There isn't the ghost of a doubt about it. Just try it!

As you open the tidy red tin, close your eyes and drink-in that rich, rare aroma. You can hardly wait to get the taste of tobacco that smells as good as that. Then the big moment: You load up and light up. That's Prince Albert, Men, prime favorite of veteran smokers.

Cool as a magistrate fixing a fine. Sweet as the news that you won't have to pay it. Mild as a wifely rebuke for having spent too much on her birthday present. Mild, yet with that full tobacco body that satisfies your smoke-taste to the limit. A smoke!

Buy yourself a tidy red tin of P. A. and give your pipe a chance to deliver capacity joy. No matter how settled you appear to be on a smoke-program, try Prince Albert. Millions of pipe-happy men declare that no other tobacco is like it. You'll say so.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

THE INTERNATIONAL Baseball League, in session at New York Monday, placed itself on record as opposed to the draft in any form after rejecting the proposed new major-minor agreement under which the major leagues offered to increase the price of class AA players from $5,000 to $7,000. President John Conway Toole said the question of prices did not enter into the matter. The magnates approved the recommendation for curbing gambling in any form by players, but passage of punitive regulations was deferred until action is taken by the National Association, parent organization. The season will open April 13.

THREE major league stars feature baseball developments on the eve of the major league schedule meetings. They are Ty Cobb, Herb Pennock and Rogers Hornsby. Cobb declares that he has not decided where he will play next season, although his friends had indicated Ty would cast his lot with the Athletics. Pennock, world's series pitching hero of the Yankees, occupies the role of a holdout, while Rogers Hornsby says he is ready to accept arbitration of the stock tangle which stands in his way to wear a New York Giant uniform.

JACK Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, is out of danger from further spread of blood poisoning, according to dispatches reaching here from Los Angeles. The pugilist was allowed to leave his bed for several hours yesterday. Dr. Warren Clark, attending physician, stated that it will be a week or two before Dempsey can start light work for his intended comeback. Before he received a scratch on a finger Jack had made plans to hie to the mountains. However, the scratch became infected and blood poisoning set in. Several minor operations were performed and the infected places drained.

GROVER Cleveland Alexander, 40-year-old pitching hero of the 1926 world series, received his contract from the Cardinals today, and in it was a provision that he be paid a fat increase in salary. He declined to reveal the figures. This was the second contract sent to Alexander. The first did not suit him and he returned it. The veteran pitcher intends to go to a training camp in Florida within three weeks to work himself into condition. Alex says his right arm is as good as ever, but he needs time in which to iron out any kinks that may have gathered during the winter months.

THE Geneva College basketball team administered a defeat to Grove City last night at Beaver Falls, the Covenanters winning, 26 to 24. The game was close from whistle to whistle and the fives apparently were evenly matched. In the last few seconds of play the ball was passed to Emerick, who tossed it through the hoops. Johnny Kraft played a good game for Grove City. The New Castle boy caged six baskets from the field. Grove City was off form in tossing from the foul line, making only eight of 17 attempts, while Geneva hooped 10 of 13 throws.

DUQUESNE traveled to Waynesburg last night and fell before the Yellow Jackets by a four-point margin, Waynesburg winning 26-22. As a result of the defeat Duquesne has sunk to a tie with Westminster for top berth in the Tri-State Conference. Each team has won two and lost one. Last night's tilt was hectic, but they deserved to lose because their passing did not match the good passing of the Jackets. It was the superb playing of Knox, a green lad, developed by Earl Zook, formerly of Bethany, that put the game on ice for Waynesburg.

YOUNG Stribling won from Eddie Huffman last night in 10 rounds at Madison Square Garden, but the bout was nothing that would make a fight fan shout about. Stribling, touted as having found a punch, failed to produce it, and Huffman displayed nothing but an earnest desire to fight, according to reports from New York. The fight was not liked by the fans and Stribling was the one who drew the most of the groans and catcalls. Pat McCarthy defeated Sully Montgomery in 10 rounds and Martin Burke stopped Blackie Miller in the second round. Burke used a volley of rights to the head to bring down his prey.

TALKING of boxers in college, one of the cleverest lightweights we ever saw in action was Battling Gates. He fought all the leading satellites of the ring 10 years ago and it was not until Jack Britton knocked him out did he lose by a wide margin. He could do everything but punch. After his ring days were over he hung out a shingle and is a dentist nowadays. By day he studied and at night he trained and fought. But, unlike many other boxers, he had a goal and he attained it.

Cornell and University of Pennsylvania teams have engaged in two basketball games each year for the past 23 years. Of the 46 contests that have been played thus far, Pennsylvania has won 31 and Cornell 15.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

The Battle of Seven Pines.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

ALTHOUGH "STONEWALL" JACKSON'S RAID IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY HAD PREVENTED McDOWELL REINFORCING McCLELLAN BEFORE RICHMOND, THE LATTER GENERAL WAS IN NO DANGER. HIS ARMY NOW NUMBERED NEARLY 120,000 MEN, AND HIS PICKETS WERE IN SIGHT OF THE CITY, WHICH WAS DEFENDED BY ABOUT 63,000 CONFEDERATES UNDER JOSEPH E. JOHNSTON.

TWO OF McCLELLAN'S DIVISIONS UNDER GENERALS KEYES AND HEINTZELMAN HAD CROSSED THE CHICKAHOMINY RIVER, THEN SWOLLEN BY RAINS, WHILE THE MAIN BODY REMAINED ON THE NORTH BANK, WHERE IT HAD BEEN WATCHING IN VAIN FOR THE ARRIVAL OF McDOWELL'S ARMY.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

JOHNSTON SAW HIS OPPORTUNITY AND SUDDENLY ATTACKED THE ISOLATED DIVISIONS ON THE RICHMOND SIDE OF THE RIVER ON MAY 31 (1862). A FIERCE BATTLE WAS FOUGHT AT SEVEN PINES (FAIR OAKS) AND FOR A WHILE THE UNION ARMY WAS IN GREAT DANGER.

IN THE AFTERNOON SUMNER'S UNION DIVISION SUCCEEDED IN CROSSING THE SWOLLEN CHICKAHOMINY AND REACHED THE SCENE OF FIGHTING JUST IN TIME TO TURN DEFEAT INTO VICTORY. AT DUSK, GENERAL JOHNSTON WAS BORNE FROM THE FIELD SEVERELY WOUNDED AND THE NEXT DAY HIS FATIGUED TROOPS FELL BACK TOWARD RICHMOND.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. — Announcement that the New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Nickel Plate railroads had swept the market bare of Wheeling Lake Erie Common and preferred stocks, and that Western Maryland had been practically acquired by Baltimore and Ohio added to the confusion of the market situation in these stocks in the early trading today.

On a small volume of sales Wheeling Common jumped 35 points to 130 in the first half hour of trading, while the preferred advanced 13½ to 93.

Western Maryland sustained 1½ points loss at the opening, but the stock was pushed violently to 42½ for a 4-point gain, which Chicago Great Western advanced 4 points to 20 and the preferred sold up to 33. Earlier in the year Great Western Common was quoted and sold at N½.

While stock trading was well distributed over the list in this period, the merger rails monopolized the speculative limelight. Heavy trading was resumed in Wabash Common and Preferred Class A at a slight advance in prices. Chesapeake and Ohio was inactive as opposing interests in Cleveland and Richmond prepared to renew their controversies in the management of the road and the position of the property in the new Nickel Plate amalgamation.

Hudson's advance to 63¾ was the feature of the motor stock list. Studebaker and General Motors were inactive as also were U. S. Steel and other industrial shares. Call money 4 per cent.

Jury Selection In Rudner Trial Proceeds Slowly

Chesterfieldian Antics Of Judge Agler Keeps Crowd In Good Humor

By ROBERT WALLACE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CANTON, O., Feb. 8.—If it were not for the Chesterfeldian activities of Judge A. W. Agler, the trial of Ben Rudner, which began here yesterday, would lapse into a humdrum routine of selecting jurors to decide the fate of the man accused of having conceived the plot to kill Canton's vice-fighting editor.

The venire of 56 persons drawn to be quizzed as possible jurors was exhausted early today, causing a delay until Sheriff Ed Gibson could get another panel summoned.

Meanwhile, Judge Agler beamed on the assemblage. Once when a young mother pleaded ill health as an excuse for dodging jury duty, the judge smiled, left the bench and escorted her from the courtroom with the admonition: "Take care of yourself, my friend."

The first panel of potential jurors was exhausted with the defense using but two of its 16 peremptory challenges. Most of those excused admitted that they were prejudiced against capital punishment. Some said that they had formed an opinion in the case and were summarily dismissed.

Defense counsel has indicated that this trial is to be bitterly contested. In contrast with the trial of Pat McDermott, who was convicted Christmas eve and sentenced to life imprisonment for his alleged participation in the conspiracy, the proceedings to decide Rudner's fate have become extraordinarily slow.

"Judgment Throne" Subject Of Sermon By Rev. Fleming

Unusual large crowds are attending the revival services in the Nazarene church. This series of meetings are the best in attendance, interest and spirit that the church has ever known in its four years history.

Monday evening another surprising crowd for a week night meeting attended the services. The music was in charge of Rev. Schurman and he and Rev. Rowe sang a duet number "He Is Able To Keep."

Rev. R. J. Kiefe and wife of Pittsburgh, were visitors at the revival and sang a duet accompanied with an Hawaiian guitar. Evangelist L. J. Rice of Kansas City, and Rev. L. L. McKisson of New Galilee were also present.

Rev. Bona Fleming preached a powerful and stirring sermon on "The Judgment Throne." His message dealt with the appearance of the righteous and the unrighteous at the judgment bar of God.

This evening the services will begin promptly at 7:30 in charge of Rev. Schurman. Rev. Rowe and Rev. Schurman will sing a special duet. Rev. Fleming will preach.

The matter of newspaper publicity which was to have been taken up at yesterday's meeting was not acted upon on account that the committee in charge was not able to attend.

Loan Company Work Explained To Lion's Club

Lion Richard A. Wagner told in an interesting way the work of the small loan company's to the members of the New Castle Lions club at their weekly meeting on Tuesday, February 8, at the Elks' club. He pointed out that Benjamin Franklin the father of thrift was the originator of the small loan business when he left a sum of money in his will to be loaned to people in Philadelphia in sums up to $300 to be paid back in 10 equal instalments.

Lion Carl D. Montgomery gave a splendid reading in dialect that was much appreciated.

Ladies' day will be observed on Tuesday, February 22, with Lionesses Mesdames Paul Welsh, W. E. Gordon and R. J. Robinson as the entertainment committee.

Lion B. K. Thacker was named to the reception committee to meet Prince William.

Board Considers Boiler Damage

Will Take Ten Days To Make Repairs To Boilers At Ben Franklin

During the board of education meeting last night, the matter of damage done to the boilers at the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School last Saturday, when one of the firemen opened the blowout in such a way, that numerous headers were bursted and must be replaced at a considerable expense, was up for consideration.

It developed that apparently the damage was due to carelessness.

When first up for consideration, it was reported that probably eight headers in one of the boilers had been cracked. Later in the evening, Garvin S. Ligo, who has charge of the building reported that a representative of the Babcock & Wilcox company of Pittsburgh had examined the damage done earlier in the evening and found that at least fifteen headers would have to be replaced, more than doubling the loss to the school district and that it was possible that still other damage had been done.

He said that repairs would probably take ten days but that with present weather conditions prevailing that he thought that the building could be kept heated properly with the reserve boiler.

He said that he had been unable to get a satisfactory story from the man actually responsible for the damage and urged the necessity of having properly trained persons in charge of the boilers at all times. He said it was dangerous to have those in charge of the boilers, who did not understand firing.

The board authorized the repairs to be made without delay.

Council To Provide New Arrangement For Making Improvements

New Method Of Financing New Street Improvements Is Provided

Voluminous Ordinance Is Introduced Into Council This Morning

Councilman Louis Genkinger today introduced a new general improvement ordinance which will replace the present law, considered practically obsolete and which after passage, as now indicated will have a far-reaching effect on future improvements.

The ordinance drawn by Solicitor White is voluminous and will be considered Tuesday and Friday in committee at which time citizens and contractors may hear of the proposed plans.

The salient points in Genkinger's bill which is favored by Colleagues Tyler, Davies and Mayor Dunlap provides:

Paving at the expense of the property owners excepting that the city shall pay for a larger proportion of street intersections.

Contractors must furnish surety company bonds or personal bonds to to be approved by council and legal adviser.

When personal bonds are placed they shall be filed immediately at the court house and they become a lien against the real estate of the makers.

Before any improvement can be made a complete survey shall be made by the city engineer and stakes set on the ground for the information of council and the property owners.

All bids shall be made on the same form so there can be an immediate comparison made by city council in making awards.

Other Changes Made.

It provides where any improvements are being held up because of damage, considered excessive by the city the improvement can be put through without improving at the property of the damage claimant.

It changes the method of making allowances for assessment on small or irregular lots so the owners will not have to pay an unfair amount of assessment.

It also provides sewers and house connections to be laid at the same time so the thoroughfares will not have to be reopened.

Providing extra house connections are desired they must be asked for and the owners of property must pay for such themselves.

Assesment can be made by the foot front rule but the ordinance contains a provision that council can assess according to the valuation of property or benefits.

The bill provides that the people shall have a right to appeal to city council from any assessment made by the city engineer which they consider to be unfair.

White Comments.

Relative to the proposed bill, Solicitor White who drew the measure today said:

"The idea of council is to get away from the method of having to issue bonds to make general improvements because the interest on a bond issue will run one and one half times the amount of the borrowed money.

"The people are paying a sinking fund tax this year and that tax or three-fifths of it will pay the interest and two-fifths will pay back the bond indebtedness.

"If council can make it so they will not have to issue bonds and could do away with the sinking fund they could take that tax levy and get two and one half times as much with is it we are now getting.

Councilmen say that under present conditions all of the money for general improvements is needed for street rapairs and no streets can be paved.

They believe the proposed bill will give citizens seeking paving a chance to get it immediately by paying for it without having to wait for council to raise funds.

Reporter Has Hard Job Finding Old Time Comic Valentine For Editor

Another sign that the present generation is growing better is shown by the scarcity of comic (?) valentines compared with their abundance some years ago. Real valentines pretty in design and beautiful in the verses they contain have to a great extent displaced their ugly cousins.

When Dad says the boys and girls of today are not what they used to be ask him how about that comic (?) valentine he sent to his village grocer entitled "The Professional Cheater", and a picture of a devouring monster towering over his minute customer and a verse which if now written the composer would be liable to arrest for slander if not worse, and if Bobbie would do such a trick now this self-same Dad would be up to tanning him.

Some years ago it was brought to the attention of the public that to mail such valentines known as comic was an infringement of the postal laws.

Before that time it was noticed that many stories had a large supply of comic valentines and that the sale of these nearly equaled and often surpassed the sale of the real valentines but now one is seldom able to find a store where they can be obtained and where they are obtainable they occupy but one little corner of the counter while the beautiful creations of hearts and laces are spread over many counters.

MAN LOSES PART OF THUMB BY REVOLVER AND THEN IS FINED

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 8.—Frank Raffle objected to a crap game that was a daily feature of the landscape in a quary near his Edge Hill home.

Yesterday he took his revolver and went over to break it up. He fired several shots in the general direction of the game, but the only thing that got hit was Frank's left thumb, carelessly placed in front of the gun.

The crap shooters faded out of the picture and after Frank had odd ends of the thumb removed at a hospital, he went before a magistrate and paid a $25 fine for illegal possession of a revolver.

'DUDE' RANCH, FAMOUS FOR FRONTIER LIFE, DESTROYED BY FIRE

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Feb. 8.—A few blackened walls and smouldering logs were all that remained today of the central unit of Eaton Brothers famous "dude" ranch, near here, a place where thousands of tourists have sought a touch of frontier life in the past 20 years.

Fire which started from a broken stove pipe in the main dining cabin yesterday afternoon, spread to the main ranch and office buildings despite the frantic efforts of scores of nearby ranches summoned to the scene. The loss was placed in excess of $50,000.

New Gas Supply For Mercer Lines

Connection With Mill Run Gas Company Wells Will Be Made

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Feb. 8.—If present plans are carried out the people of Mercer will be burning gas from the wells of the Mill Run Gas company in Springfield township Wednesday, which will be turned into the lines of the Mercer Gas Light and Fuel company under a six-ounce pressure, which is three ounces more than has been delivered by the United Natural Gas company for several years.

J. W. Byers has his pipe line from the field about finished, having secured the necessary permit from the Pennsylvania company to pass under its tracks at Hope Mills, several days ago. The United Natural Gas company has its equipment installed on the rear of Mr. Byer's property in South Pitts street and the Mercer Gas Light and Fuel company will complete its six inch connecting line between South Pitt and South Erie streets today.

The Mill Run Gas company has three good producing wells at the present time. The wells are located on the M. B. Orr, W. G. Christly and the Blumenshine farms. Further drilling will not be done at the present time but will be resumed later. The company, which is composed of farm owners and J. W. Byers and W. N. Hovis, of Mercer, originally had a block of 1000 acres to test, but recently took up a number of other leases and will give the field a thorough test.

Under the contract the Mill Run company sells the production at the wells, where it is turned into the pipe line of J. W. Byers, who has a contract with the company to deliver the gas to Mercer, where the United Natural Gas company delivers it to the Mercer Gas Light and Fuel company.

The Mercer Gas Light and Fuel company was built in Mercer in 1886 and the gas was purchased from what is now the United Natural Gas company and was turned into the Mercer mains that same Fall. Under the contract the company is bound to furnish the Mercer company with gas as long as it has any to market. An attempt a few years ago to annul the contract by that company was turned down by the Public Service commission and was held to be perpetual. If at any time the production of the Mill Run company should be insufficient to supply Mercer, the supply will again come from the present source.

The recent tests made in the field by both the Mill Run company and the New Wilmington Gas company, which recently became a part of the merger which resulted in the Columbia Gas company, the largest in this part of the country, leasing in the Springfield township field has been quite active and large blocks have already been taken. The field has attracted outside speculators and what the future may develop remains to be seen, but what the people of this community is interested in is will the supply be sufficient to give Mercer a good pressure.

BESSEMER

Bessemer High and New Wilmington High schools clashed Friday night, Feb. 4, in one of the annual literary contests of the county. New Wilmington was Bessemer's choice for opponents as the feeling between the two schools is very high. The college town high students are always eager for a clash with the students from the smoky town down the way. The New Wilmington contestants tried especially to carry off all the laurels, due to the fact that Bessemer won out in the football meet and thus won the class B championship of Lawrence county.

The judges of the contest had a difficult task in choosing the winners. All the contestants exhibited excellent work and the task of choosing was a very difficult one.

The two schools contested in four events: essay, oration, declamation and debate. The following is the program as it was carried out:

Orchestra.

Essay: 1. Then and Now, Hettie Crum. 2. The Evolution of Travel, New Wilmington, Eleanor Beerbower.

Orchestra.

Oration: 1. Woodman Spare That Tree, New Wilmington, Margaret Barr. 2. The New Department, Bessemer, Maurice Levinson.

Orchestra.

Declamation: 1. College Oil Cans, Bessemer, Eleanor Throop. 2. The Lost Word. New Wilmington, Hildreth Walton.

Orchestra.

Debate: Resolved that the Monroe Doctrine should be abolished. Affirmative: New Wilmington, Charles McCormick, Jack Lewis; Doris Goff, alternate; negative, Bessemer, Dorothy Windland, William Seltzer; Harry Howard, alternate.

Orchestra.

Decision of judges.

The decision of the judges showed that New Wilmington won the first three events, but Bessemer carried the debate strong. The judges were Mr. Boak of the Shenango schools, Mr. Wathers, principal of the Plain Grove High school, and Mr. Black, principal of Volant.

The Bessemer High school orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Joseph H. Martin, furnished music for the occasion.
